Two Swamis, Too Many.
Let Lindbergh Rest.
Life Grows Longer.
Mr. Barber Killed Four.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 9.

THE inhabitants of this city, especially husbands, are watching two "Holy Men" from India, their names Mukund Lal Ghosh and Basu Kumar Bagchi. These Hindu "Swamis," sometimes called Yogananda and Dhirananda, manage a school for ladies.

Each lady pays $25 cash down, and is taught, on top of a high mountain, almost everything from fat reduction and tissue building to "heaven vibrations" and "love control." When educated, she is expected to give liberally.

One Los Angeles husband thrashed one Swami. The district attorney may act.

SIMILAR educational institutions have recently been revealed on the Riviera, near Nice, in Switzerland and elsewhere. The amazing thing is not that Swami gentlemen could collect $25, but that American women should be such colossal fools.

IN a strong wind and a tropical shower, Lindbergh landed in Panama yesterday afternoon, finishing his flights over the forests of Central America.

His trip, non-stop from Washington to Mexico City, and his other flying, have done good, no doubt. But Lindbergh's life is worth more to this country, even, than the good accomplished by this flying.

The young airman, for a while, should be protected from dangerous risks.

DR. IRVING FISCHER, wise man of Yale, says man's average life, 70 years hence, will probably be 85 years, because destructive diseases will be successfully fought.

Typhoid has declined 87½ per cent, diphtheria 44 per cent, deaths from consumption have greatly diminished. If cancer and heart disease could be conquered, thousands might live to 100 where one reaches that age now.

HOWEVER, not how long you live, but what you do while you are living, counts. A centenarian is not of great importance unless it can be shown that the last 40 years have been something better than mere existence. Giant turtles on the Galapagos Island live almost a thousand years, but that does nobody any good.

GOETHE wrote the second part of "Faust" when past 70. Michael Angelo painted magnificently after 80, and Titian at 90, when the plague killed him. Edison, past 80, does fine work and inspires youth. Theirs is the old age worth while.

LYMAN J. BARBER, of Los Angeles, kidnaped by Mexicans in Guerrero last month, returns from captivity with an exciting narrative. The Mexican bandit-kidnapers didn't get their $10,000 ransom and decided to kill Mr. Barber last Sunday morning. On the preceding night, according to his story, Mr. Barber, having secreted an iron rod and a broken bottle, killed four of his captors and escaped, tired, but safe.

THOSE that call the story improbable, must remember that extraordinary things are done in desperation. Long ago a New England woman, captured by Indians and carried through the forest for several days, escaped after murdering half a dozen of them, in their sleep, with one of their own tomahawks. Every blow was so deadly that no warrior heard a sound.

EXPERTS will show that the young kidnaper and murderer, Hickman, suffers from dementia praecox, the brand of insanity that freed the young Chicago murderers, Leopold and Loeb.

Fortunately, dementia praecox fails to work sometimes, when cash is not abundant, and that is the case as regards Hickman.

IF cold-blooded cruelty, careful planning and extreme cunning constitute dementia praecox, then that kind of insanity should be cured by life imprisonment. If Hickman is not convicted, any California conviction for murder hereafter will be a farce.

MR. SANDINO, who recently killed some of our Marines, is said to have adopted for his patriotic little emblem a seal labelled "Republic of Nicaragua," showing a Nicaragua patriot cutting off the head of an American Marine.

From that dream, Mr. Sandino will be awakened, soon!

There won't be any American seal showing an American Marine cutting off Mr. Sandino's head, but there may be a practical demonstration along those lines.

MRS. ELEANOR KATENZARO

A blow on the head with a poker was the answer given by H. E. Haas, 50, a grocer, of 2318 East street, to an offer by Mrs. Eleanor Katenzaro, 17, of 650 Suffolk street, to pay a small bill owed by her mother, it was related in Morals Court. Haas admitted using the iron rod, but said the girl threatened him first. He was held for court, charged with assault and battery.

2 TOTS DIE IN FIRE

MONESSEN, Pa., Jan. 10.—While their parents and aged grandfather sought vainly to rescue them, two Negro children were burned to death last night when fire destroyed their home.

Fanny Lou, 3, and Paul, Jr., 1, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Bassham, 1538C Schoonmaker avenue, were found in their beds dead after firemen had subdued the flames which quickly consumed the home, a frame structure.

The parents had left home a moment before the fire started. John S. Bassham, grandfather, made frantic efforts to reach the bedroom of the children, but was turned back by the flames.

THREE DIE IN AIR CRASH

LOST TRIO FOUND DEAD

By International News Service.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Missing for 36 hours, a wrecked airplane in which three fliers went to their death was found early today in a field near Fonda.

The dead:

PAULEY, EDWARD M., CAPTAIN, of Albany.

BENEDICT, GEORGE R., LIEUTENANT, of Peoria, Ill.

HENRIES, RAYMOND, PILOT, mail pilot, of Buffalo.

The plane, en route from Minneola to Buffalo, is believed to have crashed to earth in a heavy fog late Sunday afternoon. The fliers left Albany Sunday afternoon, and had not been heard from until their bodies were found in the wrecked plane early today.

Alarmed when the plane did not reach Buffalo Sunday night, officials of that city wired Albany aviation authorities asking that a search be started at once for the missing airman.

News of the mysterious disappearance of the plane was broadcast by radio yesterday. Within an hour after the news had been put on the air, officials received a telephone message from a resident of Glen, Montgomery county, stating

Chair Horror Grips Velma

PAINESVILLE, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Fear of the electric chair hangs over pretty Velma West as she spends her time nervously in her cell in county jail.

The widow of Thomas Edward West, young nursery man of Perry, O., beaten to death with a hammer last month, talks continually of her horror of electrocution and at night she cannot sleep, Sheriff Rasmussen says.

The sheriff, fearing she might attempt to harm herself, placed her under special guard last night. She became very nervous when the county grand jury convened yesterday to consider the first degree murder charge against her.

Mrs. West fainted in the courtroom when she was arraigned several weeks ago after the presiding judge ordered her held for the grand jury. An uncle later explained that she had thought the judge sentenced her to death.

To keep Mrs. West company, Sheriff Rasmussen last night placed Mrs. Frank A. Nash in the cell with her. Mrs. Nash will spend the nights with her from now on and, if necessary, a guard also will be placed with her during the day, the sheriff said.

James West, brother of the slain husband, who found the body in the home of the young couple; Coroner O. O. Hausch, Sheriff Rasmussen and a number of persons who knew the Wests were called before the grand jury yesterday. Other witnesses have been summoned for testimony today.

SCHOOL HEAD'S RAISE SPURS ON TEACHERS

A raise of $3,000 a year, making his salary $15,000 a year, has been voted to Dr. William M. Davidson by the Board of Education in reappointing him superintendent of schools for a term of six years. This action by the board, on reaching the ears of Pittsburgh school teachers, has stimulated them in their efforts toward obtaining better salaries.

The teachers' contention in turn has stirred to action the Citizens'

LAY MINE BLAST TO RIVALRY

By International News Service.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Jan. 10.—An industrial race between two coal mines, bent on establishing high production records, was charged by officials of the United Mine Workers here today, with having been the cause of the fatal "black damp" blast yesterday, which killed 21 miners in the lower levels of Industrial Coal Company Mine No. 18 of the Peabody Coal Company.

Both mines engaged in the alleged production race are owned by the same company.

Charges that officials of Mine No. 18 had failed to comply with the state law and had permitted miners to enter the deep pits after a state mine official had reported the presence of gas and before a "gas cleared" report had been made, were made by Bert Brown, president of the miners' union local of which the dead miners were members.

W. E. Wade of Herrin is in the Union Hospital, still unconscious from the effects of the gas, but believed to be on the road to recovery.

Ballard Cremeans and Harry Christine, both of West Frankfort, are also at the hospital, but are reported in far more serious condition

WON'T STAY DEATH

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Gov. Al Smith indicated today that he will let Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray go to the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison on Thursday night, without taking any action on their recent plea for a stay of execution. Asked in his apartment at the Biltmore Hotel when he expected to make a statement announcing his decision, Gov. Smith merely said:

"I will make no statement today. I may not make any at all."

The governor refused to amplify his remark, but his secretary, Edward Griffin said "the chances are that there will be no statment made at any time," indicating that the execution would be allowed to take place on schedule.

SING SING PRISON, OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Henry Judd Gray, who is to die in the electric chair Thursday night, received an unexpected visit from his wife, Mrs. Isabel Gray, in the death house here today. The meeting was pathetic, and the sashweight slayer of Albert Snyder, the art editor, showed emotion for the first time in weeks.

It was Mrs. Gray's final farewell to her husband. She has visited him only once before since he went behind the grim walls of Sing Sing. She was stunned by the tragedy which wrecked her home, robbed her daughter, Jane, of a father and disgraced her name. She has been on the verge of a collapse for weeks at the home of her brother-in-law in Norwalk, Conn., and has refused herself to all callers.

Mrs. Gray left the prison at 12:15 this afternoon. She had been with her husband for over five hours. She was escorted to a gate near the south end of the prison and spirited away in an automobile. She declined to make any statement.

One of the guards, however, said

PITT FOOTBALL DELEGATES END TRANSCONTINENTAL TOUR

Here are Pitt's football champions as they appeared at Union Station at 7:45 this morning on their return from the Pacific Coast, particularly Pasadena, Cal., where they held the Cardinals of Stanford to a 7-6 score on January 2. The Panthers survived the game and the long trip in fine shape. The members of the party are, left to right: Front row—Goldberg, Hagan, an assistant to the student manager; Parkinson, Fox and Hoban. Middle row—Fyock, Wasmuth, the wearer of the Panther skin, Getto, Guarino, Doverspike, Fisher, Demoise, Edwards, Head Coach Sutherland, Unsa, Assistant Coach Bowser and Chief Scout and Line Coach Stevenson. Back row—Roberts, Donchess, Kerr, Wilps, Montgomery, Sargeant, Welch, Student Manager McKee and Booth.

MARINES RUSHED TO QUELL NEW OUTBREAK

TOWN CUT OFF BY REBELS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—United States marines were dispatched yesterday for Somotillo, a town in the department of Chinandego, near the Honduran frontier, where a serious situation is reported to have arisen. It was at this place that 10 Nicaraguan national guardsmen, with a non-commissioned officer, deserted from the national guard column on Sunday, joining the Honduran General Higinio Peralto, a well-known revolutionist.

The marine officer commanding the column at Somotillo went to Villa Nueva to secure additional guardsmen, but when he returned he was unable to enter Somotillo, as the entire populace was in revolt.

Communication has been cut off to a large extent, the Sandino forces having destroyed the telegraph lines.

MARINES ON WAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—More than half of the 1,200 marine reinforcements for Nicaragua were sailing south today while 450 others waited at Norfolk, Va., for a clearing of fog that held their transport, the mine sweeper Oglala, in the harbor.

Well on their way to Corinto, on the Nicaraguan west coast, the cruisers Trenton, Raleigh and Milwaukee were many miles out of Charleston, S. C., where they took on Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, marine corps commandant; Brig. Gen. Logan Feland, who will direct the campaign against the outlaw leader, Augustino Sandino, and 300 men.

"BLACK PETES" JAMMED -:- AS CLANCEY CLEANS UP

AWAIT "BLACK PETE"

Central police station was jammed to its capacity today with 114 prisoners taken in Inspector John P. Clancey's clean-up of "The Hill" district added to the regular roster. Awaiting the wagon here are Joseph "Scarface" Lappord and William Smith, of Cleveland. They are flanked by Plainclothesmen F. J. Brunner and T. White, with Plainclothesman John Golden behind them.

DROP IN UNANNOUNCED

Raiders dropped into poolrooms, speakeasies, clubs and what-not without first sending in their cards to gather together this widely representative group. At Fullerton street and Wylie avenue, scene of this study in human existence, the city's finest patrols awaited arrival of the guests. Some of the more distinguished prisoners insisted on seats, but many took "the ride" standing.

GOOD MORNING, JUDGE!

Wagonmen Joseph Yeske, left, and Herbert Rice put a few of the boys away for "the ride." "It won't be long now," remarked Frank Johnson, the young gentleman sticking his head through the rear—and only—entrance to one of the city's well-known "Black Petes." The 114 prisoners were to go before Alderman John J. Verona today with a wide variety of appendages to their "suspicious person" arrest charges.

B. & O. RAIL AGENT TAKES OWN LIFE

An empty bottle that had held carbolic acid at his side, George K. Shindel, 45, freight agent at the Allison Park station of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was found dead in the freight warehouse early today by employes.

Nearby, too, according to the morgue report, was a letter advising other agents to "beware of stocks and bonds." The letter asked a Mr. Glassford, traveling auditor of the railroad, to whom it was addressed, to care for Shindel's young daughter. He was a widower.

Shindel, who lived at Mars, had been employed by the B. & O. for 10 years. For the last three months he had been stationed at Allison Park. Shindel's accounts are being checked at the Allison Park station.

Gas Fumes Overcome Two

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., Jan. 10.—Overcome by gas fumes, George Bradley, 28, and his wife, Margaret, 26, were found in their home here this morning and no hope is entertained for their recovery, although physicians have been pumping oxygen into their lungs for six hours.

In an adjoining room their 10-month-old daughter, Marjorie Ann, was found asleep, unharmed. The fumes evidently had not reached her room.

MORE PAY BECOMES ISSUE

Committee on Teachers' Salaries, appointed by the Board of Education last June to study the question of salaries and to make recommendations thereon. As a result the whole matter of adequate compensation for Pittsburgh teachers, which has been hanging fire more than five years, again becomes an issue.

Dr. Davidson's new term will carry him to the age of retirement. It was explained by N. R. Criss, vice-president of the board, speaking in the absence of President Marcus Aaron, but theu raising of the superintendent's salary has no direct bearing on the situation confronting the teachers.

Under the Pennsylvania school code, compensation of the teaching personnel is fixed by the Legislature, while executives, members of the clerical force, instructors not provided for in the code and other employes are paid on schedules fixed by the board from a budget set apart for that purpose.

The Citizens' Committee on Teachers' Salaries, of which A. W. Robertson is chariman, has leased a building at 3601 Fifth avenue, and will establish headquarters in charge of C. F. Lewis, secretary. Charles Reitell, research director, is making a nation-wide survey of salaries paid teachers in the larger cities and close attention is given to other conditions surrounding the work of school instructors.

The millage for schools in Pittsburgh since 1921 has been 11¼. Of this, seven mills goes toward the salaries of teachers in the elementary schools, junior high schools and senior high schools, supervisors and principals. Two mills is the amount set apart for the sinking fund and 2½ mills for salaries of executives, clerical workers, office supplies, etc.

Any increase to the teachers, it is declared, would result in increasing the millage and this could not be done without action by the Legislature as affecting cities of the first class. The teachers in their contention thus far have fixed no specific percentage of increase, but with the activity undertaken by Citizens' Committee and news of the increase recently granted Dr. Davidson, the campaign in behalf of the teaching staff will be prosecuted with renewed vigor, according to those who have this work in charge.

A reception will be given Dr. Davidson tonight at Taylor Allderdice High School in honor of his reappointment. School directors also will be guests. Each school building will be represented by one teacher.

CALL PLAN OF P. & L. E. WASTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A policy of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad in contracting to outside parties its maintenance of way work was declared today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be "inconsistent with efficient and economical management."

The railroad estimated that it had saved $155,918 in a five-year experiment with the system under the cost it would have encountered by hiring its own workers. Commission investigators, however, contended that a net loss of $611,266 actually had resulted to the road.

"The compilations are not exactly on the same basis and we cannot reconcile the results," the commission said, "but the infirmities of the railroad's calculations are sufficient to justify our refusal to be guided thereby."

It was significant, the commission added, that during the five-year period the yearly average number of men on the contractor's rolls increased from 306 to 1,125.

"Further," it said, "the practice presents such a fertile field for excessive allowances, overcharges, misunderstandings and possible future litigation that it cannot be regarded as consistent with efficient and economical management. Whatever may have been the justification for such an arrangement in the beginning, the facts do not justify its continuance."

In his new Christmas lounging robe, Herbert Hartley, 52, commander of the Leviathan, flagship of the United States merchant fleet, took his ease in a suite of the William Penn Hotel today, after taking part in the formal opening of the new offices of the United States Lines in the Clark Building. The skipper of America's largest steamship talked fondly of his great craft as if it were a living being. "She has made 124 passages in the merchant service and be the weather fair or foul, her records are almost identical, comprising a record for service that is equaled by few vessels afloat." He has crossed the Atlantic 860 times in his 34 years' service.

both Gray and Mrs. Gray were greatly affected by their meeting under such sad circumstances.

"She forgave him," the guard said. "And when she was going she said a tearful goodby."

Ruth Brown Snyder, the blonde co-slayer, who also dies in a little more than 48 hours, was not aware that Mrs. Gray was calling upon her former lover.

The two women have never spoken.

Both Gray and Mrs. Snyder slept well last night. Gray was awake as early as 6 o'clock, but Mrs. Snyder slept late. She spent some time writing after she had breakfast.

Mrs. Gray was ghostly white and sorrow-laden when she was assisted into the automobile and taken away from the prison after saying goodby to the man who for 10 years had been a faithful husband. Disillusionment was written upon her face and her eyes were red, as if from weeping.

BANKS ELECT DIRECTORS

Stockholders of Pittsburgh's 17 national banks held their annual meetings today and elected directors for the ensuing year. Stockholders of some of the 23 trust companies and 25 state banks also elected directors. A tendency was shown to enlarge the boards. On the other hand several banks which lost directors through death or resignation during the last year, did not fill the vacancies. The elections resulted as follows:

Farmers Deposit National Bank—Samuel McCay, of the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay, added to the board.

Farmers Deposit Savings Bank—A. W. Robertson, president of the Philadelphia Company, added to the board.

Farmers Deposit Trust Company—No change.

Third National Bank—William H. Brown, Jr., John Gibson, Jr., William M. McKee and A. B. McSwigan added to the board.

Union National Bank—Walter H. Baker of the Universal Steel Corporation, Bridgeville, added to the board.

WARREN, O., Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Rebecca Jerome, 10 months old, was burned to death and her father, Frank Jerome, was seriously injured today by an explosion in the Jerome home at Ohltown, when the father attempted to light a coal stove. Deadly coal gas was believed to have formed in the stove.

Police Find Girl's Shoes; Threw Them at Thief

A purse and a pair of slippers, found last night in River avenue, near the Pennsylvania Railroad Bridge, brought a police investigation of the alleged robbery of Mrs. Lenora Boster, 26, of 10 River avenue, who told authorities that she was held up and robbed in River avenue late Saturday night. Police doubt her story that she was held up and robbed of her purse and that she threw her slippers at the thief.

FREDERICK C. M'CLURE SUMMONED BY DEATH

Frederick C. McClure, 56, of 304 Bouquet street, newspaper compositor, died suddenly of heart failure last night while undergoing treatment by his physician. Since 1915 he had been an employe in the composing room of the Chronicle Telegraph and later the Sun-Telegraph, and was at work yesterday. He was born in Beaver county, a son of Frederick C. McClure, Sr., former editor of the Beaver Falls Tribune. He learned his trade in the Tribune office and came to Pittsburgh in 1902 as a compositor on the old Pittsburgh Times. When the Times was discontinued in 1906 he went to the Leader, remaining there until 1915. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marie Morris McClure.

"Meanest" Thief Steals Boy's First Watch

The "meanest meanest" thief appeared in Wilkinsburg yesterday. He took 7-year-old Herbert Earhart's first watch—a Christmas present from his mother. The boy, returning to his home at 609 South avenue, from school, followed the advice of a stranger and put his wrist watch in his pocket. The stranger then picked him up, held him high in the air, and told him a funny story. Herbert, continuing home, still was laughing when he found the watch missing.

HUNTING-AND FINDING-TRIP ENDS

TOO MUCH EQUIPMENT BRINGS BOYS' ARREST

"What's this, another flight around the world?" queried Patrolman Louis McAfee as he stopped these three youthful adventurers, heavily laden with bread, bacon, cooking stove, blankets, dozens of pairs of socks, knives, a rifle, flash lights and a conglomerate assortment of articles. "No, just a little hunting trip for coons around Zelienople," Gurske, oldest of the trio, explained. Police said the boys had already been hunting and finding, with many stolen goods in their possession. Frank Kromke, 14, 1407 Penn avenue, and John Rudy, 15, 1445 Penn avenue, and William Gurske, 18, of 1442 Penn avenue, were taken to the Allegheny Police Station. Gurske was held for Morals Court, while his two companions were turned over to Juvenile Court.

Boxes Her Way to Health

LILLIAN WARD

When Lillian Ward, of East Main street, Uniontown, was 8 years old, physicians told her parents she was too weakly to live. Today, at 17, she is robust, healthy and one of the most attractive girls in Uniontown High School.

BOXES WITH HER BROTHER, JOHN

At nine, she started boxing with her brother, John, 2 years her junior. John developed into an amateur boxer of no mean standing and Lillian from an undeveloped and sickly child became the healthy girl photographed here. Westley Ward, her father, is confident that the exercise saved her life. Four years ago she was in an automobile accident and was severely injured. Attending physicians said that only her remarkable physical condition, occasioned by boxing, won her long fight for life at that time. And, incidentally, the drugstore cowboys in Uniontown don't wisecrack when Lillian walks past.

SOLDIER RITES FOR WINTER GIVEN VETO

FUNERAL WILL BE PRIVATE

Raymond Winter, World War veteran, executed at Rockview yesterday for the murder of two children, will not have a military funeral. Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Winter of Brentwood, parents of the slayer, vetoed the plan of Winter's comrades of the Eightieth Division to bury him with pomp and ceremony.

E. C. Koontz, Carrick undertaker, left for Rockview shortly after the execution to obtain the body, expecting to return with it yesterday afternoon. The prison officials insisted on conducting an autopsy, which delayed Koontz's departure. He was scheduled to return to Pittsburgh with the body this afternoon.

The funeral, strictly private, will be from his parents' home, 23 West Bellcrest avenue, Brentwood borough, probably late Thursday afternoon. Interment will be in Homewood Cemetery.

HENRIETTA SHOEFI

The string of amber beads worn by Miss Shoefi, Syrian beauty, is said to be the most valuable in the world. The necklace contains 99 beads, and is 10 feet in length. It required 20 years to collect. The beads have been on exhibition at the Oriental show in Madison Square Garden.

PANAMA FETES LINDY AS BALBOA ON WINGS

FLIER SIPS WINE IN TOAST

PANAMA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Where Balboa waded ashore to discover an isthmus, the lone eagle descended from the clouds to discover the heart of a people. Panama today honored Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as a modern conquistador.

From the direction of Balboa, the Spirit of St. Louis came sailing through space and settled down to earth on Campo Lindbergh, named in honor of its pilot. It had taken the flier a little more than four hours to span the distance of 310 miles between Panama and San Jose, Costa Rica.

His face sunburned from his flights under a tropical sun, Lindbergh smiled and shook hands and bowed gravely, maintaining the reputation for modesty and personal charm that preceded him and won for him the title of ambassador of good-will.

At the presidential reception, Lindbergh took one sip of champagne, clinking glasses twice with Chiari.

THE BIBLE-- "Letter Killeth, Spirit Giveth Life" --OR-- "I Gave My Oath to Enforce Law" THE LAW?

HENRY JUDD GRAY

Governor Al Smith today is expected to rule on the pleas of Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder, that they be granted a reprieve from the electric chair.

Exc[ellency of the] II. CORINTHIANS, 3. [gospel ministration]

Adv, lest perhaps such a one should be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow.

8 Wherefore I beseech you 'that ye would confirm your love toward him.

9 For to this end also did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye be 'obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it 'in the person of Christ;

11 Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

12 Furthermore, 'when I came to Troas to preach Christ's gospel, and a door was opened unto me of the Lord,

13 'I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother: but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks unto God, which

God; not 'in tables of stone, but 'in fleshy tables of the heart.

4 And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward:

5 'Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves;

6 Who also hath made us able 'ministers of 'the new testament; not 'of the letter, but of the spirit: for 'the letter killeth, 'but the spirit 'giveth life.

[illegible] was glorious, 'so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away:

8 How shall not 'the ministration of the spirit be rather glorious?

9 For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration 'of righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was made

QUOTES ST. PAUL

To save Ruth, who, with Judd, killed her husband, Albert Snyder, as he slept, her attorneys quoted St. Paul "that the letter of the law killeth, but the spirit and intent giveth life." And while her attorneys quote the Bible, heavy guard is kept over Ruth to prevent her ending her own life in the death cell.

HE WILL DECIDE

Governor Smith already has indicated he will refuse the pleas.

RUTH SNYDER

Ruth Snyder, the "Ice Blonde," of the trial, no longer can lay claim to that nomenclature. Her calm is gone, she spends much of her time in her Sing Sing death cell weeping, much more she spends poring over the Bible, seeking Scriptural solace for her crime. Her daughter, Lorraine, 12, does not yet know that her mother is to die, the news having been carefully shielded from her by relatives.

Coincidence That First Tripped Judd Gray—Ruth

At the climax of her own "last story," written in the Sing Sing death house as she awaits execution for the murder of her art editor husband, Ruth Brown Snyder makes the following revelations:

(Copyright, 1928, by New York Daily Mirror.)

That she made frantic efforts to get Gray to leave the house the night of the murder, but that he sneaked into Snyder's room and had beaten him unconscious before she was aware of what was afoot.

That he had contrived the robbery story beforehand and had prepared what he thought a perfect "cover" for his deed.

That it was purely through coincidence detectives first picked Gray as the killer, by comparing a pin initialed "J. G." with his name in her note book. The pin belonged to Albert Snyder's first sweetheart, "Jessie Guischard."

That she thought the famous sashweight had been given to her as a practical joke, when Gray included the murderous instrument in a package, with a corselette and a bottle of chloroform.

HIS ANSWER'S BASIS

Upon the New York law covering first degree murder cases, Governor Smith's answer to the justice of their appeals must be based.

Paragraph 1045: New York Criminal Statutes:
First degree murder is punishable by death.
Paragraph 505: "Mode of Infliction":
Death of a first degree murderer must in every case be inflicted by causing to pass through his or her body a current strong enough to cause death, which current must pass through the body until the convict is dead.

Jailed for Locking Up Girl

Accused by Naomi Shaulis, 17, a waitress, of 2065 Chalfant street, Wilkinsburg, of attacking her while he held her prisoner in his room for four hours early yesterday, C. P. Trout, 46, proprietor of a restaurant at 920 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, is being held in the county jail today without bail. He was held for court on a serious charge at a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace George B. Shields.

Miss Shaulis, employed by Trout, was found yesterday morning by police on a roof of a building adjoining the restaurant, after her father had told police she was being held prisoner. She said she had been forced to hide on the roof by Trout when he saw the officers coming.

ELDERLY COUPLE SNARED BY LEAP YEAR CUPID

CAMBRIDGE, O., Jan. 10.—Cupid did not seek youth for his first leap year victims in Guernsey county. The first 1928 license went to J. O. Spear, 56, and Jennie F. Burgess, 52.

FAINTS, BUT LOSES SUIT

Mrs. Robert Swan, 59, of 3569 Elmhurst street, who fainted in the corridor of the City-County Building yesterday after she had left Judge H. H. Rowand's court, today lost her suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Mrs. Swan had brought suit for $25,000 damages for injuries sustained April 6, 1925.

NEW KENSINGTON CLUB YIELDS SLOT MACHINES

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—When the German Beneficial Union rooms were raided by county detectives last night two dismantled slot machines were found and there was evidence that liquor had been poured down a drain, detectives say. No arrests were made. John Arsenjak, 760 Second avenue, was held for court on a charge of violating the Snyder act by Justice of the Peace H. W. Kuhlman following a raid on his store last night.

By International News Service.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 10.—Capt. Lancaster and Mrs. Keith Miller, who are attempting a flight from England to Australia in the biplane, "Red Rose," crashed near Muntok, Dutch East Indies, and both were injured, said a dispatch received here today.

HIS WARD FREED TO WED MARLAND

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Lydia Roberts, attractive adopted daughter of Edward W. Marland, wealthy oil operator and former Pittsburgher, was today free to marry the man of her choice, her foster-father.

Prior to today and for the last 12 years she was Miss Lydia Roberts Marland, but yesterday the aid of the courts was sought so that the romance might be continued, and a kindly judge annuled the adoption. The wedding, it is understood, will take place soon.

The petition for annulment was signed by Miss Marland, her foster-father and the young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Roberts, who live at Flourtown, near Philadelphia. The "good and personal reasons" stated in the annulment petition were a desire to have the marriage performed without any legal complications.

Mr. Marland's fiancee, besides being his adopted daughter, is also his niece by marriage. He is a brother-in-law of Miss Roberts' mother.

Neither Miss Roberts, who is 28, nor her foster-father, who is 55, appeared in connection with the annulment proceedings.

Miss Roberts was adopted when she was 16 "because of her affections for her aunt," Mr. Marland's wife, "and the desire to live with her." Mrs. Marland died in 1926.

Mr. Marland is a native of Pittsburgh. He was admitted to the bar there when 21. Two years later he entered the oil producing industry in this state and later went to Oklahoma, where he organized the Marland Oil Company in Ponca City. It grew rapidly and in 1926 its holdings were estimated to be worth $85,000,000.

THREATENS TO JAIL WARDEN

A set of prison bars, steel gates and locks that would not yield to his title almost separated Warden Stanley Ashe of Western Penitentiary from the outside world last night. Only the intervention of friends and some convincing arguments by the warden saved him from landing in the Bellevue Police Station as the prisoner of a hard-boiled traffic policeman, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

He had tooted the horn of his automobile to attract the attention of Mrs. Ashe who was awaiting him at the door of Bellevue's municipal building.

Several other motorists who preceded him had used the same signal to call awaiting wives and friends attending a social function in the building.

The policeman blamed all of the toots on Warden Ashe, and judging from his reluctance to change his mind about holding his distinguished prisoner, he still believes he was right.

B. F. JONES, JR., BEQUEATHS ESTATE TO HIS FAMILY

WIDOW WILLED 3 HOMES AND ART WORKS

The estate of B. F. Jones, Jr., chairman of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, is left to the family, it was disclosed today when his will was filed for probate. One bequest of $50,000 was made to William C. Moreland, friend of Mr. Jones and vice president and director in the corporation. Mrs. Jones is directed to reward faithful servants.

The widow, Mrs. Sue B. Jones, is willed residence properties in Pittsburgh, Hot Springs, Va., and Augusta, Ga., and pictures and works of art, along with $100,000. She also is to received one-third of the whole estate. The balance of the estate is to be held in trust during the life of Mrs. Jones, she to receive three-fifths of the income, one-fifth to go to B. F. Jones III and one-fifth to Adelaide Jones Burgwin, son and daughter.

At the death of the widow the residue of the estate is to be divided equally, one-half being given outright to B. F. Jones III and the other half to be held in trust for the daughter, Mrs. Jones, her son and W. C. Moreland are named executors.

CITY'S BUDGET PASSED

The 1928 appropriation bill, totaling $25,113,780, finally passed Council yesterday. The bill carries an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the 1927 measure and boosts taxes to 25 mills on land and 12.5 mills on buildings. Council also passed the amendments to the salary bill providing for 25 additional policemen, and for the personnel to staff the addition to the city's tuberculosis hospital.

GIRL IS JAILED FOR MURDER

Charged with murder, Olga Pawliskak, 17-year-old Russian beauty, and her fiance, Mike Poppowich, both of Fair Oaks, were committed to the county jail today for the killing of Nick Anderson, 35, of Ambridge, Sunday in the kitchen of the Pawliskak home.

County detectives say they still doubt the story of the girl, who maintains she shot Anderson because he molested her mother.

SHE'S THE POLICE FORCE

HELEN BAKER

North Arlington, N. J., can, at times, boast of the best looking police force in the United States. Helen Baker, 22, is—and has—"it." She is clerk in the tax collector's office. When the town's one police officer is called away on duty, she fills his place, even to arresting the town drunks.

MILLIONAIRE TRIES SUICIDE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Worry over financial matters is believed today to have caused A. Albert Sack, millionaire of Providence, R. I., to attempt to kill himself in the presence of his bride of eight months at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn. At the Long Island College Hospital, where he was taken, it was said that a razor blade slash in his throat would not prove fatal.

Sack had just returned from the Metropolitan Opera with his wife, the former Marion Grant, recent star in "Her Enemies," and his 19-year-old nephew, Albert Sack.

"I did it myself," he said later.

CHAMBERLIN WILL BE GUEST HERE 3 DAYS

Pittsburgh will be host to Clarence D. Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, for three days, January 27, 28 and 29, during his tour of the country to arouse interest in aviation. Before coming to Pittsburgh he will spend a day in both Johnstown and Greensburg.

EX-DRY AGENT WINS PAROLE

Myrr C. Clowes, a former government prohibition agent, yesterday was released from jail where he was serving a sentence for extortion, and was placed under a five-year parole by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Friends of Clowes interceded in his behalf, when they learned that George W. Trimmer, a former prohibition agent, convicted with Clowes, had been released from jail under a parole on January 3.

The two former government agents were convicted November 11, and sentenced December 3, for demanding and receiving $150 from Steve Haluschik, in whose store at 409 Fifth avenue, Rankin, they found a still.

PHILADELPHIA COKE CO. GIVEN STATE APPROVAL

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—The Corporation Bureau of the State Department today approved the incorporation of the Philadelphia Coke Company of Pittsburgh. The company has a capital stock of $5,000. It will manufacture coke, chemicals, gases, dyes and other byproducts from coal. Directors of the company include: S. K. Phillips, Dormont; E. A. Berry, Mt. Lebanon, Pittsburgh; David M. Gilmore, Sewickley; T. J. Michle, Jr., and A. L. Nelson, Pittsburgh; S. T. Brown and John D. Shaner, Ben Avon.

SKATER'S BODY RECOVERED

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—The body of Ellsworth Kelfer, 18, missing since last Wednesday evening when he went skating, was dragged from the reservoir of the Mount Pleasant Water Company at Bridgeport this morning. The body was found by John Weinman and John Dolan.

MRS. ANNIE SCOTT IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mrs. Annie Scott, widow of John J. Scott, died Monday morning in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Martha McElroy, 5009 Dearborn street. Mrs. Scott was a member of the First Church of the Brethren and the Col. John I. Nevin Auxilliary of the G. A. R. Besides Mrs. McElroy she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Stanger and Mrs. Rose Eberhardt, and three grandchildren.

CONVICT NEGRO OF ATTACKS ON GIRLS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—Russell Thomas, aged 20, Monongahela City Negro, was sentenced to a term of 18 months in the workhouse by Alderman J. F. Carmichael this afternoon when he pleaded guilty to three counts of molesting white women on the streets of Washington.

Thomas, who is an old offender, having been an inmate of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, and also having served a sentence in the workhouse previously on similar charges, was sentenced to six months on each of the three new charges, one to follow the other.

The arrest of the Monongahela Negro was a direct result of the brutal murder of Thelma Young here 10 days ago. An investigation of the slaying of the girl disclosed rather alarming conditions with many cases of women being accosted on the streets by Negroes.

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—Sergt. Jones and Private Flanigan, state police stationed at Washington, Pa., were here yesterday searching for two Negroes suspected of knowing something of the murder of Thelma Young, Washington girl. The men could not be located.

'FEAR' PRISONER SENTENCED

Sam Scarcelli, of Niagra Falls, N. Y., afraid to tell in the Federal District Court how he became involved in the theft of an auto that he transported from Niagra Falls to Indiana, Pa., yesterday was sentenced to the Erie county jail for six months.

When Scarcelli pleaded guilty December 17, his attorney explained his fear for his life. At that time sentence was suspended to permit Scarcelli to return home and adjust his business affairs.

Mike Zaffuto, a co-defendant, who stood trial, was acquitted.

EXTRA CLERK REFUSED BY FRANKLIN COUNTY

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 10.—The Venango County Salary Board yesterday rejected the request of Prothonotary Elizabeth Swyers for another clerk in her office because of the frequent holding of two sessions of court simultaneously. The board did permit, however, employment of extra help at those stated times. No material changes were made in salaries of Court House employes.

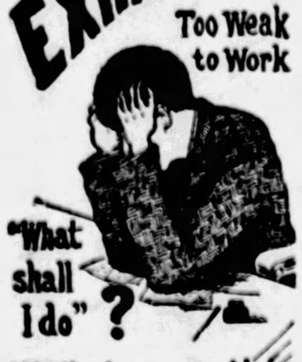
EXHAUSTED! Too Weak to Work



"What on earth is wrong with me?"

MILLIONS ask this question daily—yet through wrong advice and treatment—fail to get at the real cause of their weak, run-down conditions.

Few ever suspect symptoms of System poisoning—professionally called TOXEMIA—a malady that saps vital energy, causes stomach disorders, rheumatism and other exhausting ills.

If you want to prove what's wrong, start getting rid of poison wastes in bowels by taking PARTOLA, the internal antiseptic and laxative. Don't depend on ordinary laxative pills and waters, because they don't dislodge the weakening germs that cling to intestinal lining. Take PARTOLA, then feel natural strength and pep return! All good druggists sell regular box 30¢, double size 50¢.

PGH. COAL CUTS WAGES

HIRE INDIAN FOR BISON

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock came home to find a caretaker for his county parks, after he had searched in vain through Western Indian reservations for an Indian, who would like to live in the parks at the county's expense and care for the buffalos and deer.

Chief Two Eagles, 31, full-blooded Sioux Indian, recently of the Rosebud Indian reservation of South Dakota, came to the court house yesterday, and after a short talk with Commissioner Babcock accepted the job.

The chief and his family, consisting of his wife, Princess Kouo-a, and their four children will move to the South Park Thursday morning, it was announced a short time later by Paul B. Ilis, director of the parks. The chief will be particularly useful in seeing that no harm comes to the deer and buffalo, as he has had considerable experience in deer hunting.

POSTS NOTICES EFFECTIVE TODAY

A reduction in the wages of miners employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company will go into effect today, notices posted at mines of the company announced yesterday. Several months of serious depression in the coal market is responsible for the cut, C. E. Lesher, executive vice president of the company, said. This is the first reduction by the company in more than a year.

The new rates range from 59 to 87½ cents per hour for an 8-hour day under ground worker and 51 to 68 cents per hour for outside work. Several lines of work were not included in the work and various others were reduced from four to eight cents per hour. The reduction range was said to be 40 to 60 cents a day.

DUGGAN HEADS TRADE BOARD

F. L. Duggan was elected president of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade at the monthly meeting and annual election of officers at the Morrowfield Hotel last night. Other officers elected were: G. W. Lupton, first vice president; G. M. Dowler, second vice president; L. Z. Birmingham, third vice president; W. M. Justice, fourth vice president; W. T. Dabney, secretary; Alice Henry, treasurer; A. C. Leslie, solicitor. Fifteen directors also were elected.

Recommending a new bridge over the Monongahela River from Hazelwood to Beck's Run, approval of progress of the North Side-West End Bridge Association, with resolutions sent to the County Commissioners, and plans for the annual banquet in honor of the tenth anniversary at the Morrowfield Hotel, January 26, were features.

MAN BITTEN BY DOG GIVEN $600 BY JURY

To be bitten by a German police dog is worth $600 in damages, a Common Pleas Court jury decided in the case of Rocco Ali, an ice dealer, who sued Oscar Schmidt for $5,000.

Ali was attacked July 6, 1926, while delivering ice at Schmidt's home, Bates and Atwood street, and for several months was laid up at his home, 14 Soho street, according to testimony.

Quarantine Them

Strict Quarantine Enforced.

City Health Department, Pittsburgh, Pa., quarantines all cases of pneumonia. Doctors issue warning to never allow a cold to settle in the chest or lungs. Colds are a deadly menace to health, especially that simple cold which you neglect.

To conquer a cold, see your druggist. Get a package of Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea. Its cost is small. Take it steaming hot to heat the chilled blood and flush the poisons from the system. Remember, this pure vegetable remedy is fine for constipation.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Why Be Sluggish at ANY Age?

Age need not bring on sluggishness—and won't, if you give the system a tiny bit of calcium now and then.

Calcium cleanses the system as no cathartic can, with none of the after-effects that make salts so injurious. They form no habit—except as they gradually induce the bowels to daily natural evacuation without aid. Calcium wafers are the best insurance against auto-intoxication.

Try it!

A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium, and the decided benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 30c. Or the family size, 60c.

CARNEGIE ART EXHIBIT DRAWS 2,000 IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Two thousand people last evening attended a reception at the Brooklyn museum to open formally the Twenty-sixth Carnegie International Exhibition of Paintings. This is the exhibition organized by the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh and shown there from October to December.

The guests, among whom were many nationally-known artists, critics and collectors, were received by William H. Fox, director of the Brooklyn Museum, and Mrs. Fox. The show includes all the European paintings seen at Pittsburgh and about two-thirds of the American representation. In all there are 361 paintings in the exhibition. The guests displayed great interest in the paintings awarded the prizes at Pittsburgh.

Speaking of the exhibition, Mr. Fox said: "The annual exhibitions of the Carnegie Institute represent the passing panorama of the pictorial art and are fairly indicative of the conditions which prevail year by year in Europe and in this country. In the present instance it is obvious that the jury of selection, made up of some of the most distinguished artists of Europe and America and representing in themselves the various contemporary tendencies of painting, made a selection which shows the dual character of painting in practically all civilized countries. The so-called contemporary and the so-called modernistic trends of painting are indicated in a significant way in this exhibition and it will be evident to the observer that there is no effort to be extravagant in either state of demarcation."

The trustees of the Brooklyn Museum expressed their gratitude and obligation to the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh for giving the people of Greater New York the opportunity to see this much-discussed and notable collection of paintings. Homer Saint Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, who assembled the exhibition, was unable to be present at the reception. The Institute was represented by John O'Connor, Jr., the business manager. The exhibition will remain at the Brooklyn Museum until February 19, then it will go to the California Palace of the Legion of Honor at San Francisco.

NATIONAL PIKE CHANGE STIRS PROPERTY OWNERS

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—The National pike is to be made into a 100-foot boulevard, the State Highway Department has announced, and the contemplated widening has aroused abutting property owners. At present the pike is 66 feet. Many buildings will have to be torn down or moved, as there have been numerous encroachments. It is the oldest continuously improved highway in the United States. It was surveyed by George Washington and many stirring scenes with Indians attended the mapping out of the course.

TECH WILL ENTERTAIN 29 STUDENT EMPLOYERS

A conference of executives representing 29 different Pittsburgh firms that employ at least 10 students each among this year's night student body at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be held tomorrow night following a dinner at the Carnegie Inn, on the campus. President Thomas S. Baker and several of his associates, who are identified with the administration of the night division, will be hosts.

An Important GENERAL MOTORS Announcement concerning the New PONTIAC SIX

General Motors has always believed that it could render the highest form of public service by satisfying every motoring need... by building a car for every purse and purpose.

Five years ago there became apparent the growing necessity for a low-priced six which brooked no compromise with quality and which offered those elements of size, stamina, and beauty on which enduring owner satisfaction so vitally depends. And the development of such a six at once became an objective of General Motors.

Into its original design went the experience, not only of Oakland-Pontiac engineers, but of all the engineers working on all General Motors cars—all the scientific discoveries of the General Motors Research Laboratories. There followed long and rigorous testing at the General Motors Proving Ground. And in January 1926, the first Pontiac Six made its appearance before the public . . . to encounter a reception of spectacular proportions.

Immediately there arose a public demand which has grown with every passing month. As rapidly as possible the original Pontiac Six design was improved by the benefits of engineering advancement. And the economies of steadily growing production were returned to the public in the form of lower prices.

The success of the Pontiac Six, during those twenty-four months, constitutes one of the brightest chapters in automotive history. Yet now there is offered a new Pontiac Six which bids for even greater success by virtue of vivid new style and marked improvement in design at no increase in price.

This impressive enrichment of Pontiac Six dollar value is an impressive example of General Motors' policy of constant progress.

It is a direct reflection of General Motors belief that the public is best served by the development of constantly better automobiles.

And it reveals with unmistakable clarity the influence of those five great General Motors resources which have made Pontiac pre-eminent among the low-priced sixes—

1—the pooled experience of all General Motors engineers, who, with the background of scientific research afforded by General Motors Laboratories, constitute one of the greatest groups of engineers ever devoted to a common cause.

2—the testing facilities of the General Motors Proving Ground which, with its 1245 acres of roads and hills, is the largest outdoor laboratory ever devised for the proving of automotive products.

3—the benefits of General Motors wide engagement in diversified automotive manufacture, for General Motors manufactures both for itself and the industry at large a great variety of specialized automotive products ranging from starting, lighting and ignition equipment and radiators to spark plugs, bearings and speedometers.

4—the advantages in appearance and construction inherent to Fisher bodies, for Pontiac Six bodies are Fisher bodies . . . styled with all the mastery of Fisher craftsmanship, finished in genuine Duco, and embodying those principles of staunchness, solidity and safety that the public has learned always to expect from the world's largest builder of fine automobile bodies. And—

5—the economies of General Motors vast purchasing power which enables General Motors to acquire materials in huge quantities and thus to effect annual savings of millions . . . which are passed back to the buyer in the form of more advanced engineering, more distinctive beauty, more satisfying performance and more pronounced economy.

General Motors looks confidently forward to the reception of the New Series Pontiac Six, for this new car embodies all those basic elements which inevitably win public approval——quality in design and construction—staunchness that survives the months and the miles—appearance that induces owner pride—comfort based on ample dimensions and scientific weight distribution—with prices so low as to establish an entirely new measure of value!

GENERAL MOTORS
CONSTANT PROGRESS BETTER MOTOR CARS

In keeping with General Motors' policy of progress, the Pontiac was introduced in 1926, thus adding to the General Motors' line a low-priced quality six. The fact that it established a world's production record during its first year reveals the soundness of the policy—which now finds further expression in a new Pontiac Six, vitally improved in appearance, performance and comfort.

LIQUOR CARGO IS SEIZED IN YARDS

Five barrels containing 356 quart bottles of whisky, wine, gin and other liquors were seized by prohibition agents yesterday on a platform in the Water street yard of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The barrels had been shipped as a consignment of sirup from Newark, N. J., by the "Newark Sirup Company" to the "American Sirup Company of Pittsburgh," according to agents.

In connection with the seizure, federal authorities arrested Nicholas J. Hanna, 5526 Center avenue, proprietor of the Hanna Employment and Commissary Company; his assistant, M. B. Potchnik, 1038 Biltmore avenue, Dormont; Robert W. Lavan, Elizabeth, N. J.; William H. Brady, Kearney, N. J., and Harry Gee, proprietor of the Gee Electric Company, Wheeling, W. Va.

The seizure was made when the barrels were about to be loaded on trucks for delivery to Gee at Wheeling, it was said. Afterwards the five men were taken into custody.

A seizure of 600 cases of wines and cordials was reported confiscated in the home of Frank A. Weinstein, 723 North Negley avenue, a former official of the Logansport Distillery, Logansport, Pa., who was a government witness at the revocation permit hearing of the Allegheny Chemical Company.

NIGHT WATCHMAN HAD LONG SEARCH

Finally Finds Relief from Indigestion; Tells Public About Ten Herbs.

"I tried all kinds of medicines to get relief from indigestion, but nothing did me any good until I used Ten Herbs, which banished my stomach trouble in three days," was the statement of Mr. J. A. Seidel, Textile Inn, Wyomissing, Pa., according to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine. "I am night watchman for the Berkshire Knitting Mills," Mr. Seidel continued. "I had to eat a cold lunch every night, and I think that this had a lot to do with my stomach getting so disordered. I had indigestion and sour stomach all the time. My stomach felt like there was a lump of lead in it. I would fill with gas and bloat badly. I felt dizzy and sleepy all the time—was about 'knocked out' all over.

MR. J. A. SEIDEL

"Ten Herbs proved to be just the medicine I needed. In three days' time it made me feel much better. My stomach feels like new. I find that I can eat whatever I want without having the least distress from indigestion. There is no more gas, or dizzy spells. My system seems to have been cleansed of poisons and impurities, and I feel full of new life and vigor. Ten Herbs made such a big change in me that I am glad to recommend it to the public."

Ten Herbs is a wonderful mixture of ten of the finest natural medicinal ingredients known to medical science. It not only benefits and invigorates the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, but has a soothing, cleansing, correcting effect on the entire system. If you are weak, nervous and underweight; if appetite is lagging and you lack ambition; if there is stomach distress, aches and pains throughout the body, or frequent rising at night, you had better take the advice of others and try Ten Herbs.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Human Body Selects From Food What It Needs

HAVE you ever thought about the wonderful powers of selection possessed by the human body? No matter what you eat, or where you eat, or who the cook may be, the foods take into your stomach are worked over by the organs and distributed to all parts of the system. The needs of your body are accurately and exactly supplied.

DR. COPELAND

Let us think about this for a moment. We eat many of the foods the lower animals take. They enjoy beets and carrots and cabbage, just as we do. But when they eat these vegetables, the products of their digestive processes become cow or sheep or turkey, as the case may be. When we eat these, they become human tissue.

Nature possesses what the scientists call "tissue proclivity," or "selective affinity." This is the power of each part of the organism to appropriate and use the substances sent to it by the blood streams.

But you can see that the organs must be well directed in their efforts. Otherwise, too much material might go to one place and not any to another.

Then there must be some sort of control so that there shall be a proper balance between supply and waste. There must be furnished exactly the right quantity of exactly the right food. The wastes of the body are being thrown off and they must be replaced by new materials.

The accurate regulation of intake and waste is referred to as the "metabolism" of the body. There are certain foods and glandular secretions which are known as "hormones." The hormones are the regulators of metabolism.

One of the chemical substances we get in our food acts as such a regulator. This is iodine.

You have heard a good deal in recent years of the value of iodine as a cure for goiter or as a preventive of the disease. The chemical has been added to table salt in the effort to supply the deficiency.

The best way to get the essential iodine in a form to be accepted readily, is to eat the foods which normally contain it. The salad vegetables—lettuce, cabbage, kale, romaine—and root vegetables like carrots, are iodine carriers.

Efforts have been made to increase the quantities of iodine in the edible plants by fertilizing the soil with iodine carrying foods. There is much to be learned in this field, but at present the evidence is unconvincing.

There can be no doubt, however, that the materials are quite as necessary to human welfare as are the foods which give growth and energy. The strength of the bones and tissues, the proper regulation of the functions of the organs, as well as the symmetrical growth of the body—all of these depend on the consumption of certain minerals.

Fruits, vegetables and the cereals are particularly rich in mineral substances. But we must not forget that milk and meats are, too. Well-selected foods will provide everything needed for the body's welfare.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

To determine to do anything is half the battle.—LORD NELSON.

A DAY of doubt and uncertainty as well as some tenacious obstacles is read from the prevailing lunar transits. These thwarting conditions may be negatived, however, by the well-stimulated mental attitude and sagacity incited by the mutual aspect of Mars parallel Mercury. This should assist in the speeding up of lagging and congested conditions.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which business acumen and sagacity may overrule certain astral conditions of doubt and delay. Resolution may overcome stubborn obstacles. Be careful to preserve harmony in personal affiliations.

A child born on this day may have a keen and clever mentality, which it may need to cope with obstructing conditions. It should have the virtues of amiability and good nature instilled in order to promote personal harmony and domestic well-being.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

Capricorn Folks Analyzed by Fay King, Seer

By FAY KING

THOSE born between Dec. 21 and Jan. 20 are Capricorn people, and their ruling planet is Saturn.

They are endowed with many admirable gifts. They are great thinkers, are eager to progress along lines of thought.

They have very retentive memories and great energy. They do best when working for their own interests, although they are dependable and devoted to duties entrusted to them.

They are great idealists and are apt to place their friends on pedestals and to be utterly disappointed if they find their idols are of common clay after all.

While Capricorn people should be the most popular people in the world and readily attract friends, still they do not care to have many intimates.

They dislike to be questioned or have their affairs meddled with. They are devotion itself to those who are near and dear to them.

They sometimes suffer from self consciousness and are over sensitive. They never forget a wrong, although they may forgive it.

Their tastes are inclined to be luxurious, but they are excellent managers in money matters, spending lavishingly at times to indulge their worship of the beautiful and costly, and making up for it in great frugality in other ways.

They can be very cold and hard and selfish at times and have great pride. But they are also warm-hearted and kind to those worthy of their consideration and affection.

They are indefatigable workers! They rarely are failures for they can turn failure into success.

Cinderella and Her Husband Worried a Lot About Their DAUGHTER!

YOU may not have realized it, but after that slipper episode led the Prince into such a hasty marriage, he found that Cinderella was—well, let us be kind and say, "impulsive."

He wished Cinderella wouldn't call him Rex. She had an uncomfortable fondness for nicknames. He asked her to explain why she always addressed their daughter as Cereus. He knew it was a plant, of course, of the cactus family—not a flattering idea—but she laughed and said something about the flower, and when it bloomed. A brilliant woman, but difficult.

From the short story, "Cinderella's Daughter," in February Cosmopolitan

The daughter became a problem, or rather the central occasion for debate between them. She looked like Cinderella and acted like the Prince. So each thought she needed rescue and contended for possession of her soul.

Now who, we ask, would dare so whimsically to bring up to 1928 a fairy-tale we have reverenced for so long? Bernard Shaw? Perhaps. But he's too old to give it so 1928 a touch. Ah! John Erskine, of course—the man who dared to tell us the (as we say today) low-down on Helen, Galahad, and Adam and Eve.

Of course, he wouldn't dare do this, unless he were sure of his audience, and that—equally, of course — is why he does it in Cosmopolitan. Because he knows that in the readers of Cosmopolitan, he addresses an audience which can understand—the largest audience of intelligent readers in the world.

Are YOU Willing to Listen to the TRUTH?

DID YOU KNOW that General Pershing had to fight to have an American Army at all? That he had to fight to keep this army from being used as mere replacement troops and laborers in British, French, and Italian Divisions?

THAT THE BRITISH went behind Pershing's back direct to President Wilson and sought to have Pershing's power broken because he refused to accede to their wishes?

THAT CLEMENCEAU CABLED to Washington that Pershing could not get along with the French General Petain?

THAT IF IT HAD NOT BEEN for Pershing's courageous determination to have a real American Army the Allies might have lost the War?

For ten years America has been waiting for someone to tell the TRUTH of our part in the World War.

Cosmopolitan selected BRIG.-GEN. HENRY J. REILLY as the man best fitted to do this. Son of a regular army officer—the gallant Captain Reilly, killed at the gates of Peking during the great Boxer uprising—Reilly has been soldiering one way or another all his life. A year ago Cosmopolitan sent him abroad to get the basis for telling YOU the TRUTH. He begins it in February Cosmopolitan. You may not enjoy what he tells you, but you'll be interested, believe us!

Who Can Tell a Story of Love and Daring as Can Our Own Rex Beach? We should answer without hesitation, "No one." And here we have in "Don Careless" a short novel complete—a treat for lovers of red-blooded fiction such as no other magazine could—or would—afford.

Emil Ludwig told the "Inside" About Napoleon, but that was Tame—compared to what this scintillating biographer tells about HIMSELF in his autobiography in February Cosmopolitan. A feature so unusual it could be addressed only to an audience as intelligent, as understanding as that of Cosmopolitan.

Irvin Cobb Wouldn't Want That Dempsey-Tunney Referee to Cook Eggs for Him "Because," he says, "I like mine soft-boiled." And that's only one of the wisely humorous—or humorously wise—comments he makes on the great national event, in "The Battle Hims of the Republic."

Other stories and features by E. Barrington, Ring W. Lardner, Fannie Hurst, Leonard Merrick, Owen Wister, George Ade, Heywood Broun, O. O. McIntyre, Royal Brown, W. Somerset Maugham, H. C. Witwer, E. THE DIVORCE MILL

Satisfied with her parents' home and refusing to provide his wife with one of their own, Mrs. Hulda G. Levi, 423 Ninth avenue, McKeesport, wants a divorce from Melvin M. Levi, on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. She told Judge James B. Drew through her counsel, B. S. Waddell, her husband had threatened to kill her.

After George W. Heasley was gone for seven years, Mrs. Mathilda H. Heasley, 159 South Highland avenue thought her husband dead, but when she presented an insurance company with a death claim, found he was alive. This was revealed when Mrs. Heasley told Judge James B. Drew her reasons for wanting a divorce on a charge of desertion. It was developed by her counsel, Harry I. Glick, that the insurance company carrying the risk on Heasley's life finally notified her that her husband was alive in California. Later she heard he was in Uniontown and had him arrested on a desertion and non-support charge. Heasley deserted his wife in April, 1911, walking out of the house saying he was going to hunt for work, but never came back.

BOY, 17, HEIR OF TONG LEADER

The will of George B. Lee, Hip Sing Tong leader, filed for probate in the office of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, names a 17-year-old Chinese, a high school student here, chief beneficiary.

Lee, who lived at 513 Second avenue, had been prominent in Chinatown circles for the last 10 years.

The will, one of the most unusual filed in the history of the register's office, is written in Chinese on the first two pages of Lee's ledger. With it, to conform to the law, was a translation sworn to by Louis Wong, Chicago University graduate and life-long friend of the Hip Sing leader.

In the will the estate is valued at $1,000 in personal property and $25,000 in real estate, but Attorney Walter L. Dipple, Lee's attorney, said it probably would be double that amount.

The Potter Title and Trust Company was named as administrator.

TEXT OF WILL

The will reads: September 16, George B. Lee will to Fook Quon Ng and in St. Alaphausus Hospital, Sige by George B. Lee, Boise, Idaho. George B. Lee for the last few years which. I owe some one, or some one owes me money that they are in this book, please pay them out in August and September. George B. Lee. If I die everything goes to Fook Quon Ng. $700 to my good friend, Mr. Hule Sing, and Mr. William P. Wong, $400, except these two all my property and money goes to Fook Quon Ng.

On page two of the ledger is the following, under date of November 17, 1927: I have life insurance, $17,000, and I have been paid for the last four years, the evidence is in the First National Bank that you ask him to give it to you. I have stock $8,500, market value worth $20,000, 20 years later $200,000. I owe First National Bank $7,250, and owe Duquesne Bank $2,000. I owe one year tax, about $800. Signed, George B. Lee.

Fook Quon Ng, chief beneficiary, is Samuel Thomas, a native-born Chinese youth. Last Thursday, in Orphans' Court, the Union National Bank was appointed the boy's guardian.

The boy's parents reside in China. His father, having been in this country previous to the Chinese exclusion act of 1892, and having returned to his native country, the youth has a legal right here. The youngster was brought to America by Lee, his godfather, more than six years ago.

When questioned as to whether he would accompany Lee's body to China, he said definite plans had not been made, but if he should he would return to America. He is a student in the Franklin Public School.

M'CANN, FOOD STORE HEAD DIES, AT 73

Frank McCann, founder of the food store, which bears his name, and former downtown real estate operator died yesterday in his home in Los Angeles, according to word received here. He was 73 years of age and had been in poor health for months.

Besides achieving success in business, Mr. McCann is credited with bringing to the city, as members of McCann's stock company at the old Grand Opera House, Thomas Meighan and Henrietta Crossman, famous motion picture stars.

Born in County Armagh, Ireland, Mr. McCann came to Pittsburgh about 1870. Five years later, he engaged in the butter and egg business in the old Pittsburgh market house, from which small beginning grew the business that made "McCann's," now McCann & Co., familiar to a host of Pittsburghers.

Retiring from active management of that firm in 1899, Mr. McCann was for years one of the most active of the city's real estate buyers. During the downtown boom period, he figured prominently in many large transactions.

In 1905 Mr. McCann erected the Fifth Avenue Arcade, Pittsburgh's first structure of that kind. At the time of his death he was president of the Arcade Land Company, owner of property on McMasters way and Diamond street. At one time, Mr. McCann owned and operated the old Tivoli Garden, Diamond street. Later he was associated with Harry Davis in the management of the Grand Opera House and the Avenue Theater.

About 12 years ago, he, with his brother, Owen McCann, sold their entire holdings of McCann & Co. to the present owners. Since then Mr. McCann had spent most of the time on the Pacific coast. His home was at 672 South Oxford avenue, Los Angeles. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary B. McCann; a brother, Owen McCann, five nieces and a nephew, all of Los Angeles.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Nancy D. Coster.

Mrs. Nancy Donnan Coster, wife of Martyn K. Coster, of 297 Denniston avenue, died last night in Columbia Hospital, where she has been confined several weeks as the result of an operation. Mrs. Coster was one of the organizers of the Southern Club in Pittsburgh, and at the time of her death was vice president of this organization. She was a member of Calvary Episcopal Church, of which she also was assistant choir mother.

Mrs. Coster leaves her husband, a daughter, her mother, two sisters, four brothers.

George J. Hartmann.

George Jacob Hartmann, 55, husband of Mrs. Cora Long Hartmann, died yesterday in his home, 1239 Paulson avenue, East End. Mr. Hartmann was a partner in the Hartmann Brothers Dairy, the oldest dairy in Pittsburgh, established in 1850. He was born in this city and had lived in the East End all his life. Besides his widow he leaves three sons, three brothers and two grandchildren.

Thomas Bradbury, Sr.

Thomas Bradbury, 80, died Sunday at his home in Millvale, where he had resided 50 years. Mr. Bradbury leaves his widow, four daughters and five grandchildren.

Charles Springer.

Charles Springer, 57, a contractor, died yesterday in his home, 134 Trenton street, Hazelwood. He was born in Germany and came to Pittsburgh 38 years ago. He was a member of St. Stephen's Catholic Church, Holy Name Society and St. Vincent De Paul Society. He leaves his widow, five sons, a daughter, a sister and two brothers.

Miss Elizabeth Heckman.

Miss Elizabeth Heckman, a former resident of Pittsburgh, died at the family home in Cleveland, O., on Sunday. Miss Heckman was born in Pittsburgh and for the last 30 years she had been a resident of Cleveland. She leaves her mother, Mrs. Helena Bambach Heckman; three brothers, H. J. C. Heckman, of Mt. Oliver; Henry J. Heckman, of Cleveland, and Elmer Heckman, of Lincoln, Neb., and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Byerly, of Pitcairn, and Miss Alma Heckman, at home.

David C. Snyder.

David C. Snyder, born in Pittsburgh 78 years ago, died at Homeopathic Hospital following an operation. He lived with his wife, Mary Margy Snyder, at 228 Steuben avenue, Crafton, and was active as an accountant until he became ill one week ago. Mr. Snyder also leaves a daughter, Mrs. William H. Locke, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Mathias Weinman.

Mrs. Sophia Wild Weinman, 88, widow of Mathias Weinman, a resident of Pittsburgh for 60 years, died Sunday in her home at 819 Southern avenue, Mt. Washington. Mrs. Weinman was a member of the German Evangelical Protestant Church. She leaves five sons and two daughters.

Miss Ellen Jane Wallace.

Miss Ellen Jane Wallace, 66, died in her home in Friday road, Millvale, Monday morning. She leaves three brothers and a niece.

Francine Larrimore Shows Marvelous Character Study As Murderess in "Chicago"

By GEORGE SEIBEL

SO true that it is funny, so funny that it is tragic, "Chicago" left the audience at the Alvin Theater last night wondering whether it is farce or melodrama. It laughs at everything and everybody connected with the murder case—at the judge, at the jury, at the counsel for the defense, at the district attorney, at the newspapers, at the inmates and staff of the jail—and at the great public on the outside, for whose benefit the solemn farce is played. Most of all, it laughs at the murderess, a cheap and flashy she-cat, and at her husband, a slow-witted boob. The only person who escapes the lash of satire is Caseley, and he escapes by being murdered one minute after the curtain has gone up.

GEORGE SEIBEL

The heroine of this courtroom circus is Roxie Hart, the murderess, played with marvelous bravura by Francine Larrimore. Miss Larrimore has created a character study composed of hysteria and vulgarity, and while it may seem like a caricature to some people, it becomes so only because of the selection and combination of traits that have gone into the make-up of many a murderess who has graduated from the court room with a halo of sentiment around her peroxide head. The moral of the play is that a good-looking woman with a lawyer strong on heart-throbs can get away with murder.

Miss Larrimore's racy and rare character portrayal is surrounded by a galaxy of others that are no less startling. Mary Stauber as Lia and Caroline Morrison as Moonshine Maggie put some acting of terrific power into the second act. Ella Heineman as the sob-sister and Norval Keedwell as a cynical reporter deserve high encomiums. Charles Halton was perfect as the husband, and Jack Rosleigh as the lawyer. It is a large cast—about 20 people—and the team-play is flawless. Everything moves with the precision of a solar eclipse, and every bit of dramatic value is extracted from Maurine Watkins' swift and biting play.

This Miss Watkins will bear watching. She has the gift of characterization Dickens had, and she has the power of developing dramatic situations out of character which makes a great dramatist. Besides, she is not afraid to use strong colors and loud expletives. In fact, realism has the last word in her "Chicago." It is not a play for squeamish ears. The murder in the beginning and the murder at the end furnish the framework for all sorts of depravity, profanity, and vulgarity, as the machinery of justice is exploited by sensationalism and the springs of sympathy in human hearts are played upon by professional tricksters. There is so much truth in it, when all is said, that its fun almost seems tragic.

PLAYLET OF MYSTERY ON SHERIDAN PROGRAM

A mystery farce that thrilled and chilled, "666 Sycamore," topped the stage bill in the Sheridan Square yesterday. After all, it was a pleasant sensation to get one's mystery play in 20 minutes, instead of waiting for three acts. On the screen Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford appeared in "The Girl in the Pullman." Gene Greene, "Southland's Song Humorist," was another vaudeville feature. Mildred "Mickey" Feeley, known as a modern "Huck Finn," sang. The Florenis, in artistic posing and equilibristic feats, an organlogus and short screen features were also on the bill.

Sour Stomach is Dangerous

Get Rid of the Acid Before It Gets Rid of You.

Don't let indigestion sap your vitality and shorten your life.

Get rid of the dangerous acid that is souring and fermenting your food, forming gas and causing pain. Acidity only gets worse, if neglected, and ulcers may form.

No matter how severe or chronic your trouble may be you can instantly remove the cause with Bi-nesin. It not only neutralizes harmful stomach acid—it heals and protects the inflamed stomach lining. Pain disappears and healthful digestion follows naturally.

Pure, harmless Bi-nesin is used by thousands and any druggist will supply 100 tablets or a large bottle of powder for 50 cents—and guarantee quick relief or your money back. Try Bi-nesin. It removes the cause of indigestion.

BEAUTY QUEENS IN HARRIS

Feminine beauty and jungle intelligence lend variety to the amusing vaudeville show being presented in the Harris this week. One act features a dancing zebra and Eva, an elephant that knows her duck pins. Eva not only scores a strike but marks up her own score. An array of feminine beauty appears in "Varieties and Fashions of 1928." This act features a number of beauty contest winners, including "Miss Washington," "Miss Ohio" and "Miss Cleveland." Gladys Darling sings, dances and gives impersonations—and she does all quite well. Ethel and Jean Browne sing and chatter. Sheck and D'Arville are responsible for a "stunt" act that is a bit different. The gentleman performer, among other things, drinks a glass of water while standing on his head. Lou Krugel and Charles Robles offer an act, "That Laugh That Makes You Laugh." Mr. Robles is blind. Western badmen and airplanes are mixed up in the photoplay feature, "Aflame in the Sky." It is a melodrama, with the boy winning the girl after gun play, airplane crashes and cross country chases. Jack Luden and Sharon Lynn are featured. Short film entertainment is on the bill.

Debut By Actress In "The Patsy," East End

"The Patsy," a sparkling domestic comedy, opened a week's engagement in the East End Theater last night. This latest presentation by Harry Schwartz's players was rather well done and was received with enthusiasm by a large audience. The performance served to introduce two new players—Blanche Wilcox, a leading woman who has ability, J. Arthur Gordon, who, in addition to acting, has shouldered the directorial burden.

Miss Wilcox portrayed the role of Patricia Harrington, the younger of two daughters, who was the family "goat—" that is, until she got hold of a book of bright and clever sayings. She practiced them on everyone—and her mother thought the girl was losing her reason. From lessons in bright sayings, "Pat" turned to lessons in love. Then things began to happen. Ray Rawling's played the romantic male lead. Other players were Grace Witcher, Beth Burke, Phil Van Zandt, Madeline Skelly and Everette Johnstone. The play is in three acts, all laid in the living romm of the Harrington home.

"THE KING OF KINGS" AGAIN SHOWN IN NIXON

"King of Kings" began the second and final week of its engagement in the Nixon yesterday, the film story of the last years of the life of Christ" again impressing audiences through the reverent manner in which the subject has been treated as well as the dramatic quality of the story. In the cast are H. B. Warner, Ernest Torrence and many other popular players of the screen world as well as thousands of extras. The scenic part of the picture also is impressive.

CAMERAPHONE PICTURE IS BIBLICAL ROMANCE

In an atmosphere of Biblical times, the current Cameraphone photoplay, "Moon of Israel," unfolds the love story of Merapi, an Israelite maiden, and an Egyptian prince. The picture is a screen version of Sir Rider Haggard's novel Maria Corda and Arlette Marchal are among the featured players. A Ben Turpin comedy and news pictures also are on the bill.

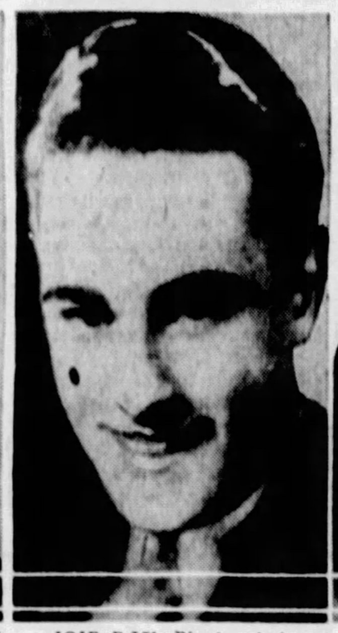
Appearing Here -:- This Week -:- In Stage Bills

FRANCINE LARRIMORE, peppy actress who has the leading role in "Chicago," melodramatic satire in the Alvin.

HOLBROOK BLINN, star of "The Play's the Thing," Pitt attraction.



JOIE RAY, Pittsburgh boy in "Bagdad," presented on Penn stage.

KATHERINE LEE, one half of the team known as the Lee Sisters, formerly "the Lee Kids," headlining in the Davis.

GREAT JUGGLER IN DAVIS

Newton never was born and gravitation simply does not exist for Felovis, the juggler who appears in the Davis Theater this week. His cane, his hat, his cigar, a lamp, a ball, some plates and sticks whirl and balance and roll as he wishes them to. He has a trick of picking up falling objects with his feet; he uses his ears and his nose and the back of his neck as adjuncts to his dexterity. Felovis is the cleverest juggler seen here in a blue moon. Another exceptionally good number is furnished by Jane and Katherine Lee, whose songs, dances and sayings are full of humor, and the distribution from Jane's basket ought to draw a mob of vegetarians. Ed Janis has a very fine miniature revue with some admirable eccentric dances and a riot of colors in costumes. Medley and Dupree created much laughter, especially by his lightning disappearance and festive stories. The Jack Hadley Trio introduce acrobatic winter sports with agility and grace, while the two Corelli sisters have splendid voices and sing good music. It is a capital vaudeville bill from first to last, and the picture, "Man Crazy," with Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, mixes romance and comedy in pleasant fashion. There is also a Larry Semon comic with wild aerial stunts.

Miss Bennett Has Great Role in Grand

Belle Bennett gave another wonderful characterization of a heart-torn mother in "Wild Geese," shown on the screen of the Grand yesterday. Her work stood out in a picture that is exceptionally well cast, the players including Anita Stewart, Eve Southern, Wesley Barry, Russell Simpson and Jason Robards. Miss Bennett's portrayal of a woman whose life is made miserable by a husband who will not let her forget a great misfortune in her past life and who makes veritable slaves of her and her children, was poignant and convincing in its realism. Russell Simpson gave a truthful characterization of the cruel and scheming husband and father, his work in a most unsympathetic role winning much admiration. Eve Southern played the elder daughter of the family with commendable appreciation of dramatic balance. On the stage a saxophone sextet, The Six Jolly Jesters, pleased with instrumental numbers, comedy, songs and dances. The bill included a comedy, news pictures, "Topics of the Day" and a special overture by the Grand Orchestra.

"MOON OF ISRAEL IS CAMEO PICTURE

The romance and atmosphere of ancient Egypt and the langour of the Nile from the setting for "Moon of Israel," from the novel by Sir H. Rider Haggard, now current in the Cameo. The film deals with the exodus of the Jews from Egypt and a romance between an Israelite slave girl and an Egyptian prince. Maria Corda is featured in the cast, which includes Arlette Marchal, Henry Mar and Ferdinand Onna, in addition to thousands of "extras." The program includes a comedy, news reel and music.

COMEDY SKETCH TOPS OLYMPIC VITAPHONE

A comedy sketch, with music, titled "Night Court," tops the Vitaphone program in the Olympic this week. Doris Dupcan and Herring and Zeh, vaudeville performers, and June Purcell, "Hollywood's Radio Girl," also appear on the Vitaphone program. The photoplay is "Honeymoon Hate," a comedy romance that has to do with an American girl and an Italian prince. Florence Vidor is the star. News pictures are shown.

Holbrook Blinn, in Smart Comedy, Scores Hit With Enthusiastic Pitt Audience

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

NOT in a long time has there been so much fun on a Pittsburgh stage as that prevailing in the Pitt last night at the opening performance of "The Play's the Thing." Not in a long time, either, has there been such a manifestation of approval of superb acting as that given by Holbrook Blinn and his excellent supporting company. Hearty applause, with real earnestness behind it, was given at the curtain of each act, the demonstration at the end of the second act calling upon the company repeatedly to make bows in response to the enthusiastic manifestations of the extreme pleasure of the audience.

"The Play's the Thing," not only "to catch the conscience of the king," as Hamlet averred, but to patch up a serious situation in which the fiances of a young composer was so compromised as to cause him to renounce her. Adapted from the original of Ferenc Melnar by P. G. Wodehouse, it demonstrated what an excellent product can be made from really thin material. Although the roots of the continental European idea of comedy are plainly discernible in the work, it is quite evident that much of what we call "smartness" in the piece is the product of the Wodehouse pen. As stated, the basis of the play is a most sheer fabric, but it has been quite heavily embroidered, this probably representing the skill of both Melnar and Wodehouse.

For two acts "The Play's the Thing" is pleasantly humorous comedy but in the third act it hits the farcical key and becomes uproarious. To sketch the action gives but an inkling of what possibilities it contains in reaction.

Mansky, Sandor Turai, and Albert Adam are two elderly playwrights and a young composer, respectively. They are guests at a house party and overhear a passionate love-making dialogue in an adjoining room between Ilona, betrothed of young Adam, and a former admirer with whom she had broken. For the young chap the revelation of the perfidy of his fiancee spelled doom. Turai, however, was equal to the situation. He sat up the remainder of the night and wrote a play incorporating all of the conversation he had overheard. Then he called Ilona and her former admirer and told them they were to rehearse it and present it at a garden party the same evening. Adam is present at the rehearsal, recognizes the lines and concludes the conversation he had heard earlier also was a rehearsal—and two loving hearts are again united.

However, do not think you have been told all about the play within the play. That is left to you as a surprise of one of the most farcical situations you could imagine.

Holbrook Blinn played the resourceful Turai and he was never more suave nor more convincing nor more genially the true artist he is. One forgets his former delightful drolleries in "bad man" parts in admiration for the warmth and amiability of his new characterization. Hubert Druce did well as Mansky, friend and collaborator of Turai, and Gavin Muir gave a sympathetic appeal to his part of Albert Adam. Martha Lorber was Ilona, pleasing alike with her artistry and beauty. Ralph Nairn, as a butler, played his part so well that he received liberal applause on his exit after a comedy bit with Mr. Blinn. Harry Mestayer and Claude Allister also were strong favorites.

Chaney In Film And Stage Acts In Penn

Lon Chaney, in a tricky and weird melodramatic film, "London After Midnight," and a series of stage specialties grouped under the head of "Bagdad," presented in a rich oriental setting, made up the pleasing bill in the Penn yesterday. "London After Midnight" appears to have been written especially to give Chaney another of the grotesque roles for which he is so remarkable. It is implausible but thrilling, pursuing its melodramatic way creepily through much improbability to a sane ending. Chaney, as usual, impressed with his uncanny skill at make-up. Dave Harmon's orchestra, in Turkish attire, formed the center around which the stage acts revolved. Joie Ray, a Pittsburgh boy, received applause on his appearance and much more applause for his singing. Meehan and Newman, in songs, acrobatic dancing and harmonica playing, were well liked. Johnson & Hewitt, equally skilled in acrobatics and dancing, mixed both exceedingly well in an eccentric dance. Dezso Retter, another grotesque comic, kept the audience laughing. The Penn dancing girls, and organlogue, overture and news pictures also contributed to the merit of the bill.

Snyder is Funny In Gayety's Show

Tommy "Bozo" Snyder has given his nickname to his musical play, presented in the Gayety yesterday as the Columbia burlesque in that theater. "Bozo, the play, gives "Bozo," the actor, plenty of opportunity, and it ought to since he wrote the book, had a hand in arranging its dances and directed the staging of it. Snyder's pantomime comedy was enjoyed as much as usual. He was assisted by Sam Green in fun acts in which he was a letter carrier, policeman, carpenter and boxer, not forgetting his characterization of a paper hanger. Eddie Bruce was a pleasing dancer and also was heard in a number of songs. Beatrice Tracey played leading feminine roles and sang in a manner that was appreciated, leading the well costumed chorus in "My Lady of the Fan," bit of feathery loveliness. A singing trio included James Brown, Frank Donaldson and Al. Lorraine. The finale of the first act, a cabaret scene, with a surprise transformation, gave all principals a chance to appear in song and step specialties. Besides those mentioned they included Fannie Palmer, Joe Murphy, Helen Harvey, Helen Vernon and Cora Ridgeway.

Jack Reid Show Holds Stage In Academy

A show combining burlesque, bits of musical comedy and vaudeville specialties, was presented by Jack Reid's Record Breakers, yesterday in the Academy. Reid was seen in character roles, "She" a dancer appeared in several specialties, her radiana number, presented with spectacular electrical effects being a feature. Syd Burke, comedienne, offered fun-making and songs, one of her unmbers being "Zulu Whale". Bid Rogers made merry in a dialect role and in a burlesque on politics. Dave Burt and Harry C. Van appeared in comedy scenes. Jimmy Bova, Italian comedian, had a character part. Among the comedy skits were "The Hat Me Father Wore", and other song hits of bygone days were sung.

SOHO CLIFF DWELLINGS -:- FADE BEFORE -:- BOULEVARD PROGRESS

IN CITY'S TENACLES

Before the gradual growth of the city, Soho's picturesque cliff dwelling along Forbes street are falling. They are being razed to make way for extension of the Boulevard of the Allies to Oakland and Schenley Park, parellel with the present route of Forbes street.

NARROWEST STREET PASSES

Middlesex alley, the narrowest thoroughfare in Pittsburgh, will soon disappear. Nine feet wide, it runs from Fifth avenue to Forbes street.

MILL WORKERS SEEK NEW HOMES

For more than 40 years, workers employed in the Soho mills have been the principal tenants of the frame houses that clung so tenaciously to the sheer hillside. Now they must seek quarters in the far outlying districts.

STAGE AND SCREEN

QUARTET IS HIT IN ALDINE

There are lots of good things to the vaudeville portion of the Aldine show this week. The Primrose Four, a quartet of male singers weighing, we bet, over 1,000 pounds, go over "big" in more ways than one. They stutter, clown and hand out harmony in a way that earns them plenty of applause. Then there's Snoozer, Jr., a dog. Snoozer isn't an ordinary dog performer, that does loop-the-loops and jumps over chairs. Instead, this dog acts with his "head," showing a marvelous amount of intelligence. Earl Faber, comedian, shows his versatility by rocking a chair, roaming about the theater and such. He is assisted by Margie McIntyre and the pair come in for their share of acclaim. Another feature is Charles Ahearn and his Millionaire Band, the membership of which have traveled from Wall Street to Hoboville on the stage. Theirs is quite a novel presentation. The Dixon Rigg Trio also appears. On the screen, in the photoplay, "The Fighting Eagle," Rod La Rocque is seen as one Etienne Gerard, a young soldier who gets chummy with Napoleon and who meets plenty of adventure. Short screen entertainment completes the bill.

SENATE MINING STRIKE PROBE ASKED

First Five Dollars Earned in "Barnstorming"

'Lindy's' First 'Crack-Up'—Cost Of Repairs Soon 'Made' in Taking Passengers Aloft

In yesterday's installment of his epic narrative Col. Lindbergh told of his purchase of an airplane and his first solo flight. This latter was a never-to-be-forgotten experience, affording the thrill that comes but once in a lifetime. Gaining confidence in a few days, Lindbergh "took off" from Americus, Ga., for Minnesota. He flew by way of Texarkana, over the rough country of the South and was successful in picking a landing place at Meridian, Miss. He was doing exceptionally well for a learner.

"Barnstorming" in the South

I TAXIED up to a fence corner alongside of a small house and proceeded to tie down for the night. I had gained considerable respect for the wind in Kansas and Nebraska, so after turning off the gasoline and letting the motor stop by running the carburetor dry (a safety expedient to keep the ever-present person who stands directly under the propeller while he wiggles it up and down from becoming an aeronautical fatality), I pushed the nose of the plane up to a fence and, after blocking the wheels securely, tied each wing tip to a fence post and covered the motor and cockpit with a canvas in case of rain.

By this time the usual barnstorming crowd had gathered, and I spent the remaining daylight explaining that the hole in the radiator was for the propeller shaft to go through; that the wings were not made of catgut, tin or cast iron, but of wood framework covered with cotton or linen shrunk to drum tightness by acetate and nitrate dope; that the only way to find out how it feels to fly was to try it for $5; that it was not as serious for the engine to stop as for a wing to fall off, and the thousand other questions which can only be conceived in such a gathering.

As night came on and the visibility decreased the crowd departed, leaving me alone with a handful of small boys who always remain to the last and can only be induced to depart by being allowed to follow the aviator from the field.

His First Passenger

I accepted an invitation to spend the night in the small house beside the field.

The next morning I telephoned for a gas truck to come out to the field and spent the time before the truck arrived in the task of cleaning the distributor head, draining the carburetor jet wells and oiling the rocker arms on the engine.

While I was working one of the local inhabitants came up and volunteered the information that he had been a pilot during the war but had not flown since and "wouldn't mind takin' a ride again." I assured him that much as I would enjoy taking him up, flying was very expensive and that I did not have a large fund available to buy gasoline. I added that if he would pay operating costs, which would be $5 for a short ride, I would be glad to accommodate him. He produced a $5 bill and after warming up the motor I put him in the cockpit and taxied through the mud to the farthest corner of the field. This was to be my first passenger.

The field was soft and the man was heavy; we stalled over the fence by three feet and the nearest tree by five. I found myself heading up a thickly wooded slope, which was sloping upward at least as fast as I was climbing in that direction, and for three minutes my Jenny and the slope fought it out over the 15 feet of air between them. Eventually, however, in the true Jenny style we skimmed over the hilltop and obtained a little reserve altitude. I had passed through one of those almost-but-not-quite accidents for which Jennies are so famous and which so greatly retarded the growth of commercial flying during the post-war period.

Chasing a Buzzard

I decided that my passenger was entitled to a good ride after that take-off and kept him up chasing a buzzard for 20 minutes. After we landed he commented on the wonderful take-off and how much he enjoyed flying low over the treetops; again assured me that he had flown a great deal in the war, and rushed off to tell his friends all about his first airplane ride.

The gasoline truck had arrived and after servicing the ship I took off again and headed west. I had no place in mind for the next stop and intended to be governed by my fuel supply in picking the next field.

The sky was overcast with numerous local storms. I had brought along a compass, but had failed to install it on the instrument board, and it was of little use in a suitcase out of reach. The boundary lines in the South do not run north and south, east and west as they do in the Northern states, but curve and bend in every conceivable direction, being located by natural landmarks rather than by meridians and parallels. I was flying by a map of the entire United States, with each state relatively small.

I left Meridian and started in the direction of Texas, cutting across country with no regard for roads or railways. For a time during the first hour I was not sure of my location on the map, but soon passed over a railway intersection which appeared to be in the proper place and satisfied me about my position. Then the territory became wilder and again I saw no checkpoints.

Lands in a Ditch

The storm areas were more numerous and the possible landing fields farther apart, until near the end of the second hour I decided to land in the first available field to locate my position and take on more fuel. It required nearly 30 more minutes to find a place in which a plane could land and take off with any degree of safety, and after circling the field several times to make sure it was hard and contained no obstacles, I landed in one corner, rolled down a hillside, taxied over a short level stretch and came to rest half-way up the slope on the far side of the field.

A storm was approaching rapidly and I taxied back toward the fence corner at rather high speed. Suddenly I saw a ditch directly in front of me and an instant later heard the crash of splintering wood as the landing gear dropped down and the propeller came in contact with the ground. The tail of the plane rose up in the air, turned almost completely over, then settled back to about a 45-degree angle. My first "crack-up!"

I climbed out of the cockpit and surveyed the machine. Actually the only damage done was to the propeller, and although the wings and fuselage were covered with mud, no other part of the plane showed any marked signs of strain. I had taxied back about 20 feet east of the landing tracks and had struck the end of a grass-covered ditch. Had I been 10 feet farther over the accident would never have happened. The usual crowd was assembling, as the impact of the "prop" with the ground had been heard in all the neighboring fields, and an airplane was a rare sight in those parts.

They informed me that I was halfway between Maben and Mathiston, Miss., and that I had flown 125 miles north instead of west.

A Rush of Business

When enough men had assembled we lifted the plane out of the ditch, pushed it over to a group of pine trees and tied it down to two of the trees. After removing all loose equipment I rode into Maben with one of the storekeepers who had locked up his business when he heard about the landing of the plane.

I wired Wyche at Americus to ship me one of the two propellers I had purchased before leaving, then engaged a room at the old Southern hotel.

While waiting for the propeller I had extracted promises from half a dozen citizens to ride at five dollars each. This would about cover the cost of the "prop," as well as my expenses while waiting for it to arrive. When it did come I put it on the shaft between showers, with the assistance of most of Maben and Mathiston. I gave the plane a test flight and announced that I was ready to carry passengers when it was not raining too hard.

The Mississippians who were so anxious to fly when the propeller was broken immediately started a contest in etiquette. Each and every one was quite willing to let someone else be first, and it required psychology, diplomacy and ridicule before the first passenger climbed into the cockpit. I taxied over to the far corner of the field, instructed my passenger how to hold the throttle back to keep the ship from taking off, and lifted the tail around in order to gain every available foot of space for the take-off.

The first man was so audibly pleased with his ride that the others forgot their manners of a few minutes before and began arguing about who was to be next.

BRADDOCK COUNCIL FAILS TO MEET

Because only six members of the Braddoch council turned out for the meeting last night, a session could not be held and the fireworks for which many were waiting, failed to materialize. Rumors that there would be a police shakeup brought out a large crowd but after a wait of four hours, the crowd left.

MINE PROBE FACTS GO TO DAVIS

A report on conditions in the Western Pennsylvania coal fields, including Saturday's evictions at Daisytown and in other mines of the Vesta Coal Company, will be handed to Secretary of Labor James J. Davis today in Washington by Miss Emmilinne Pitt, commissioner of conciliation of the Department of Labor, who left Pittsburgh last night after a six weeks' survey of this field.

The situation at Daisytown, California and Vestaburg, Vesta Coal Company towns in the Monongahela River section, is not nearly as tense as indicated since the evictions Saturday, it was revealed by Miss Pitt, officials of the coal company and union officials. Miss Pitt would not divulge the result of her investigations until after she had reported to Secretary Davis, but it was apparent that she did not consider the situation a serious one.

Vesta officials said that between 15 and 20 more families will be served with the legal five-day vacation notices today, but they pointed out that the strikers have had plenty of time to make preparations. Notices were served on all union families last June, they declared, and no person was being ousted now who would suffer hardship as a result.

Saturday's evictions resulted in a misunderstanding among residents of Daisytown, it was also pointed out by Vesta officials. As a result of an appeal from women of Vestaburg to Secretary Davis, Miss Pitt was assigned to lay the matter before the Vesta Company with a request that the company exercise consideration for families who might suffer hardship. Officials agreed to postpone some of the evictions and union people at Daisytown were under the impression that all would be postponed. As a result it was reported that the Vesta Company had gone back on its word.

The company denied these reports in discussing the additional evictions scheduled for today. Miss Pitt's report to Secretary Davis, it is understood, explains this phase of the situation as well as a general survey of living and working conditions throughout the Western Pennsylvania district.

Miss Pitt will remain in Washington two days, then will return to continue her investigation.

POULTRY SHOW OPENS IN WESTINGHOUSE BLDG.

Greater Pittsburgh's poultry, bantam and pigeon show opened yesterday in the cafeteria of the Westinghouse building, East Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Mutual Poultry Association. The show will continue for a week, with 1,500 birds on exhibition. More than 1,000 chickens are included in the exhibit, which closes Saturday night.

MOOSE HEADS FINED $500

John McCready, James E. Suffold, Joseph Malee and John Baines, officers, and Dominick Catoste, steward, of the Donora Lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose, were fined $500 jointly by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker yesterday, when they pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of 89 cases and 202 bottles of beer, seized in the club house of the lodge October 14.

Defendants in other suits for violations of the prohibition law were fined as follows: Frank Bruno, $200; August Bennette, $150; Joseph Costo, $50, and William Ferris, $25.

Rogers Imbibes English Tea—and Ducks 'Big Bill'

GARRET, Ind., Jan. 10.—Just passed through Chicago. Wanted to go up and see my old friend, Mayor Thompson, but had drunk English breakfast tea and was afraid he would smell it on my breath.

WILL ROGERS

You can kid about Chicago and its crooks, but they have the smartest way of handling their crooks of any city. They get the rival gangs to kill off each other and all the police have to do is just referee and count up the bodies. They won't have a crook in Chicago unless he will agree to shoot at another crook. So viva Chicago.

ASK SENATE INQUIRY OF COAL STRIKE

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A sweeping senatorial inquiry into the soft coal strikes in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, was proposed today in a resolution offered in the Senate by Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

The investigation, which would be conducted by the Interstate Commerce Committee, would probe the charges of the United Mine Workers that certain railroad companies have entered into a conspiracy to beat down coal prices and depress miners' wages in union fields.

CHARGE REPUDIATION

The committee also would be authorized to inquire into the repudiation of wage contracts by the operators in union fields, if defenseless men, women and children have evicted from their homes and if there has been a misuse of Federal injunctions against striking miners.

"When the Senate committee makes this investigation it will uncover conditions that will amaze and appal the country," declared Ellis Searles, an official of the Miners' union, following the introduction of the Johnson resolution.

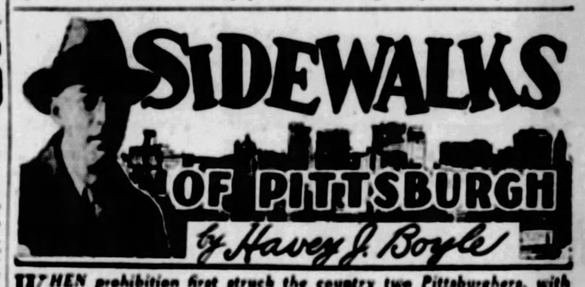
"Railroads are demanding destruction of the United Mine Workers of America in order that wages of miners may be kept at a pauper level and the price of railroad coal may permanently be held at an extremely low level."

Searles charged that the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads have served notice on operators that they would buy only non-union coal.

"In order to satisfy the railroads and hold them as customers, many large coal companies have utilized and are still utilizing brutal methods, amazing injunctions, inhuman evictions, armed gunmen and starvation of women and children to break down and destroy the United Mine Workers of America, in spite of the fact that every law of the land says that men have the right to belong to a trade union if they wish to do so."

MAN 55 IS VICTIM OF HIT-RUN MOTORIST

Believed to be the victim of a hit-and-run motorist, Harry Close, of Schar's Lane, Perrysville, was found unconscious last night at Perrysville avenue and Charles street and was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital. He was said to be suffering a broken nose, a dislocated right hip and body bruises.



WHEN prohibition first struck the country two Pittsburghers, with some foresight, purchased two barrels of whisky. On a farm one owned they dug a deep hole into which the two barrels were placed. Through the great draught, as it is jokingly called, these two Pittsburghers would spend Sunday afternoons trimming the grass on the spot marked X, tenderly patting the ground with loving hands, when they were not walking over the precious ground on tip-toe.

The other day they decided they had waited long enough. They dug into the turf and at last reached the barrels—but alas, while the barrels, in effect, were there—the whisky was gone. Moisture had rotted the barrels, they broke, and the whisky soaked into the ground. So instead of taking that long-deferred nip, the two Pittsburghers found they just had a few barrel staves on their hands.

The strangest part of the story and the only part that we don't believe is that the diggers found a group of worms hard by the barrel staves, with hands around one another's shoulders, all singing "Sweet Adeline."

WALTER LAIRD, of the Yellow Taxicab Company, tells Dr. J. C. Hipple of an interesting incident. Luke Barnett, Pittsburgh's well-known practical joker, driving his car, accidentally had a slight and insignificant collision with a taxicab. Luke went to the taxi company to make a report and all the employes said: "You can't fool us, Luke, we know you. You can't get us on that accident story." It took Luke all afternoon to convince the boys that he was on the level.

A MAN wrote in the other day that the coloring in a local church bothered his praying. "If coloring bothers him," now writes a second correspondent, whom we shall call Mr. B in this A and B controversy, "it must be hard for him to pray no matter where he is. I am not much of a Christian, but I can pray in a storeroom or a cellar and when I want to criticise coloring I go to an art exhibit."

It seems here that here is a supreme test of concentration—ability to pray in a cellar—these days.

SIDNEY SMITH, one of the best-known cartoonists in America, creator of Andy Gump, worked some years ago in Pittsburgh. John Gruber, veteran, and many another newspaperman recalls Smith. There used to be solemn sessions among the boys in the Atlas Hotel in Sixth avenue. Smith found fame in Chicago as did another cartoonist who worked in Pittsburgh and Youngstown for a time, Billy De Beck, creator of Barney Google and Spark Plug. Later De Beck moved to New York.

Marc Connelly, a Pittsburgh reporter, hit the big time after he went to New York. He is now a well-known playwright.

THERE is a Pittsburgh story we should like to prepare some day—a brief history of Newell's in Fifth avenue. Boys from the provinces in the old days spoke of Newell's in hushed tones—the establishment owned such a lustre for corn-fed ears. It was in Newell's where all the sporting celebrities, Sullivan, Corbett, et al., stopped. If some of the oldsters ever get the urge to reminisce about Newell's space will be accorded them willingly.

INSURANCE men of Pittsburgh, at least, will be interested in the amazing story of how a local agent working for one company purchased a policy in another. The agent in question visited a rival company to straighten out a small matter concerning a client who held policies in his and in the company he was visiting. Just by chance the conversation touched on insurance. (It is a strange thing and hard to believe, but insurance men often get started talking about insurance). Anyway, the upshot of the matter was that for the first time in history an agent purchased insurance in a rival company. The man who made the sale is rated one of the best in the country.

Jealousy Causes Lily to Guard Pat Against Elizabeth Ertz

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lexington is the spoiled and only daughter of the Cyrus Lexingtons, who have always lived far beyond their means. She realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to Staley Drummond, a rich bachelor older than herself. Downtown to meet her chum, Sue Cain, she is attracted by Pat France, a taxi driver. She asks him to drive her home. On the way she learns that he is cab-driving to raise money to finance a new kind of piston ring he has invented. Pat tells her that he is selling the cab to raise money for the piston ring, and she miserably wonders how she'll see him after that. Staley tells her the age-difference between them doesn't matter and tenderly kisses her. Lily realizes that she hates his love-making. Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement just as Lily's made up her mind to tell Staley that she doesn't want to marry him, and she feels like a mouse in a trap—helpless. The Lexingtons get a chauffeur, who turns out to be Pat. Lily confesses to her mother she loves him and leaves home. Mrs. Lexington decides to take matters into her own hands to get rid of Pat. Pat leaves, and to Mrs. Lexington's sorrow, Lily leaves with him. Pat and Lily are married, and Sue Cain is bridesmaid. After the wedding they go to Pat's mother's home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SHE reached under a pillow and brought forth a pale pink enamel case filled with brown Mexican cigarets that Staley Drummond had given her a few days before. She stuck one upon her lower lip.

She was lighting it when Pat opened the door, and she did not look up when he went out of the room. The door closed behind him.

Presently Lily heard him whistling in the backyard, where he was tinkering with his father's delivery automobile. Presently it rolled out of the driveway with him in it. She watched it disappear, standing at the bedroom window, and when it was out of sight she felt very lonely, and blue.

At 11 Florence came up the stairs and rapped on the door.

"Want to read about yourself in the Sunday paper?" she asked, with the most radiant of smiles, tossing the whole paper down upon the bed under her sister-in-law's nose.

On the front page was a big three-column photograph of Lily, and beneath it was the story of her broken engagement and her elopement with Pat France.

"SOCIETY BUD JILTS MILLIONAIRE TO MARRY MOTHER'S CHAUFFEUR," read the headlines, fairly jumping at her from the printed page.

Lily groaned as she looked at them. "Oh, how awful for Staley!" she said aloud. She buried her face in her hands. "Oh, how terrible!"

Florence nodded. "I'd hate to be in his shoes this morning, poor fellow," she agreed. "The whole town reading about him—feeling sorry for him! Gosh! It's too bad you got yourself engaged to him before you met Pat, isn't it?"

Lily raised her face from her slender hands. "Where is Pat?" she asked, suddenly, forgetting all about Staley Drummond, at the mention of Pat's name. "I saw him drive out of the yard a while ago."

"He's gone over to Jettersons', I suppose," Florence told her, picking up the paper and looking at it again. "He spends half of his time over there, you know. He's a great friend of theirs. . . . That's why I'm sorry you're in Sadye's bad books."

"Am I? Just because I didn't go to her party and ask her to be my matron-of-honor When I hardly knew her?" asked Lily, all wide-eyed innocence. "I couldn't see any reason why I should have kow-towed to her, when she's a perfect stranger to me—" She stopped, and a startled look swept into her face.

"Do you suppose that Ertz girl that Pat used to be so crazy about is over at the Jettersons', too, this morning?" she asked.

Florence shrugged her shoulders. "She probably is—but don't get it into your head that Pat was crazy about her. He never was—but he was wild about you from the day he saw you. Look here!"

She opened the bottom drawer of Pat's chiffonier and showed Lily a little handful of newspaper clippings about herself—together with a handkerchief that she supposed she had dropped in his cab some time when she rode home in it. Her initials were embroidered in one corner of it and it fairly scented the room with the perfume on it.

"Mother found this stuff in Pat's coat pocket one day, and from then on we knew that Elizabeth Ertz didn't matter much to him," said Florence, putting the things carefully back into the drawer. "You'd like her if you met her, though. She's awfully sweet."

She went downstairs and Lily lay staring out of the window and wondering if Elizabeth Ertz were at Jettersons' that morning or not.

"She's really the girl that Pat should have married," she said to herself, gloomily. "She knows how to work, she's used to being poor, and she probably never had a cigaret in her mouth in her goody-goody life."

But did men like the goody-goodies? Did they? Lily thought not, remembering how Staley Drummond had passed by Ann Barney to run after her, and how Pat could have married Elizabeth Ertz in all probability and had not even tried to.

Nevertheless, Lily was jealous of Elizabeth Ertz that morning. And, tortured by the thought that she might be at the Jettersons' where he was, she made up her mind to get dressed and go to the Jettersons' to make her peace with Sadye.

"I'll have to stand in with Pat's friends, whether I like them or not," she decided. "If I don't, I'm going to have pretty lonesome time of it."

But she did not move from her pillows. She lay there in bed, wishing that somebody would come upstairs to turn on the water in the bathtub and lay out her clean clothes and spread a bathmat on the floor for her.

"I'll just stay here 'til someone comes up," she thought, lazily, and went to sleep again, her smooth, rosy cheek pillowed on her arm.

CHAPTER XXV.

IT was half past twelve when Lily opened her eyes again. Someone was knocking on her door, and from the hall came Florence's light, pretty voice:

"Wake up, Lily! Dinner will be ready in half an hour."

Lily sat up in bed, blinking her eyes to get the sleep out of them.

"Turn on the water in the tub, then, will you?" she called, drowsily. "And then come here a second." She reached for a cigaret and was lying flat on her back, sending a plume of smoke to the ceiling, when Florence came into the room.

"Honey, which dress would you put on?" she asked, her eyes running over the clothes that she had hung in Pat's closet.

"This one," Florence answered, taking down the pink-and-orchid one that Lily had worn the day before. "I'm crazy about it."

"All right," its owner answered, with a wide yawn. "And if you look in my suitcase you'll see some orchid silk underthings and a pair of sand-colored stockings with orchid clocks. Just hang them in the bathroom for me, will you?"

Florence rummaged through the suitcase, exclaiming over the embroidered stockings, the hand-sewn silk lingerie, the sachet bags of violet-scented silk that were tucked into the corners.

"Everything you have is so beautiful!" she said. "It would have just poisoned me to leave all the things that you must have left behind you when you married Pat. But you know what they say—'Ain't love wonderful?'"

Lily frowned, sitting on the edge of the bed and slipping her slender, naked feet into her mules. She wondered why Pat had not come home from the Jettersons. . . . Wouldn't it be dreadful if he found out now that he really liked that Ertz girl better than he thought he did? Sometimes men never discovered who the right woman was until they had married the "wrong" one.

"What do you suppose is keeping Pat so long?" she asked Florence, anxiously.

Florence shrugged her shoulders and held up a yellow silk princess slip to admire. "Oh, he always hangs around their house a lot," she said, absently. "Just look at the lace on this slip! I never saw anything so fine." She sighed, folding it up and laying it back in the suitcase.

Lily sighed, too—but not because of the slip. "Why don't you run over to the Jettersons' and get him?"

Florence shook her head. "I've got to help mother with the dinner," she said. "I always make the salad and the coffee."

It was while she was combing her hair that Lily decided to run over to the Jettersons' house, herself, to bring Pat home. "I may as well be friends with them first as last," she said to her bright image in the glass. "If I'm not, it's going to make trouble between me and Pat. He likes them—so I'll have to pretend that I do, too, I suppose."

She went to the top of the stairs and called to Florence, to ask her to telephone for a taxicab for her.

"I'm going to drive over to Jettersons' for Pat," she told her.

"It won't take you 10 minutes to walk there," Florence called up the stairway, and Lily frowned and did not answer. She wished that Florence wouldn't mix in—that she'd do as she was told and not argue about it.

"Are you sure you want a cab?"

"Of course, I want a cab! Call it right away!" Lily spoke to her as she might have spoken to the long-suffering Carrie in the old days at home.

And after another long pause, Florence obeyed.

The Roy Jettersons' house was built close to the sidewalk on Cherokee street, four blocks from the Frances' home.

Before it was a little plot of thick green grass, about as big as a door mat. There were flower boxes filled with trailing ivy and pansies in the windows, and behind them the windows shone like crystal.

The curtains were sheer white organdy, beautiful in their simplicity, and there was an old-fashioned brass knocker on the white door.

When Lily drove up to it that Sunday morning the door stood wide open to the balmy, sunshiny air, and in the hall a small girl and boy were playing with a toy engine.

They looked up with large, velvety brown eyes, as Lily came walking up the steps. "Do you want to see Mother?" the little girl asked, in a nice little fluting voice, after she had made a tiny curtesy.

Before Lily could answer a door opened at the end of the hall and Sadye Jetterson came towards her.

She frowned for an instant when she saw who her visitor was. Then her brow cleared and she held out a big, warm hand. In the other one she had a kitchen spoon and she wore a pink house-dress that was very crisp.

Lily saw that she was better looking in her simple clothes than she had been in street attire, with her face painted. Now she seemed to be what she really was—a pleasant, wholesome woman who was a fine housekeeper, mother and wife.

"How do you do?" she asked. "Won't you come in?"

When Lily shook her head the little frown showed between her eyes once more. "I suppose you've come after Pat," she said. "But he's been gone for half an hour. He drove Roy—Mr. Jetterson—down to the garage."

She stood on the porch beside Lily and looked down the street in the direction of the big red brick building. . . . Sure enough, there stood Pat's father's automobile in the road in front of it!

"I'll run down and get him," Lily said.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I NEARly had hysTERics the other day because I've been TERribly inTRIGUED, sort of, about this odd comPANionate MARriage effect that some strange bimbo thought UP, you see, because I mean EV'rybody is all aGOG and AGitated over it at this point, so I asked ARab what he thought about it and of COURSE, my dear, he HADn't the vaguest iDEA what it was all aBOUT—can you BEAR it, my dear? So I started trying to exPLAIN it to him and all, because I think it's REALLY something that EV'rybody ought to sort of think OVer and comPARE it, sort of, with the old-FASHioned marriage idea because I mean this comPANionate marriage idea is s'posed to sort of SOLVE all these odd matriMONial situations that people keep getting all hot and BOTHered over—you know the type! Because I mean the way it is NOW, my dear, with the old-FASHioned marriage idea practically EV'rybody wants a diVORCE or something in about two SECends, but when you make a comPANionate marriage, my dear, you are practicably diVORCED to START with because the GIRL, you see, keeps on living at HOME with her FAM'ly or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? HONestly I think it's the WILDest idea I've ever HEARD of—I ACtually DO!"

Love's Embers

The Wolfhound, Adoring of Eleanor Lincoln, Brings in a New Element of Mystery

I DO not think Mary and I were entitled to any credit for poise or bravery because we did not scream when the dog belonging to the youth trailed by the red-bearded man escaped from his master's grasp and leaped into our car. We were simply too stunned and frightened to utter a sound. But it took me only a second or two to realize that the beautiful dog had not gone mad, nor was he savagely attacking us. Ignoring Mary and me, he had thrown his body against Eleanor Lincoln in a transport of joy and was attempting to lick her face.

Our young neighbor of The Larches had not seen him coming, but there was no fright in her tones as she said imperatively, "Down! Fedor! Down!" The dog instantly obeyed her, pressing himself against the back of the seat in front of him, and looking adoringly into her face. Then with a furtive, questioning glance at me, she exclaimed in a voice much higher and shriller than her usual well-modulated contralto:

"That must be his name! Don't you think so? How queer! I had a dog of that name not long ago, and I always call every dog I see by his name. But this one knew that name and answered. How very odd!"

I mentally echoed her exclamation, but even if I had wished to make an oral comment I could not have done so, for the young master of the dog had reached the side of the car, his face filled with consternation and another emotion which a child could have interpreted as blank bewilderment. His eyes were fixed upon Eleanor Lincoln's face, as if it presented a suddenly baffling puzzle.

The only explanation which appeared plausible to me was that from his own car he had seen a striking resemblance in her to someone he had known, but that upon a closer scrutiny he had realized that he was confronting a stranger.

"I beg a thousand pardons," he began. "I hope Fedor's playfulness has frightened no one."

Then his eyes fell upon me and his face suddenly crimsoned. I knew that he was recalling the unfortunate incident of two days before in the Long Island waiting room.

"Ah, madame!" he cried. "I seem fated to bring you annoyance. How ever shall I atone?"

"By keeping that beast chained and muzzled," Noel Verttzen's usually gentle tones, now raucous with anger, answered. He had been bent over the car on the opposite side when the dog had made his noiseless rush, and as we had made no outcry he had been delayed in seeing what had happened. I knew, however, that he was concerned for only one person. Indeed, I already had heard his frantically solicitous query, "Are you all right, Mary?" and her half pettish, half grateful answer, "Of course."

The wolfhound's master turned quickly toward Noel, his body stiffening, his head thrown up in resentment.

"I shall of course take measures to secure him," he began haughtily. But his eyes, which had narrowed in displeasure at Noel's ungracious words, suddenly widened, and into them came the glint of admiration which masculine youth generally offers as tribute to anyone as lovely as Mary Harrison.

"The dog really is perfectly harmless," he added, apparently addressing Noel, but looking steadily at Mary. "But he is young and not fully trained. Besides, he is not mine, and therefore does not obey me as readily as he should. I simply am taking care of him in the absence of his owner."

As if his own words had recalled something sharply to his mind he shifted his gaze from Mary's face to that of Eleanor Lincoln.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Anita Quinby's Name Added to List of Interesting Engagements Recently Announced

QUITE a few interesting engagements have been announced during the past two or three weeks, and not the least of these is that of Anita Quinby and Henry S. A. Stewart, Jr., which is made known today. Anita is a daughter of Mrs. Edward M. Quinby, of Pittsburgh and Zanesville, O., and a sister of Mrs. Thomas O. Cowdrey, of Denniston avenue.

Mr. Stewart is, as you may be aware, a Pittsburgh man, but spends much of his time in the East, where he has business interests. When he is in town he stays at the University Club.

That group of Sewickley young people comprising the junior section of the Woman's Club of Sewickley Valley, which presents a play every year and presents it unusually well, has decided that its production this season will be "The Famous Mrs. Fair," written by James Forbes. The girls will give their performance January 30 in the Edgeworth Club, the cast including Harriet Ramsburg, a debutante of the winter; Rebekah George, Virginia Goldsbury, Dorothy Scaife, Barbara Weir, Carolyn Gilchrist, Mrs. James Crossman Chaplin III, Mrs. John Way, Mrs. Charles Arrott and Mrs. William Griffith, the latter taking the title role.

The play will be given both in the afternoon and at night, and the proceeds will be used for a scholarship to Pennsylvania State College.

Frances Burdick, daughter of the Julian Burdicks, of Von Lent place, whose engagement to Charles Hammond Cromwell, of Baltimore, was announced a week or so ago, is home again after spending the week end in Baltimore. Frances attended the Baltimore assembly Friday night.

Among the Pittsburghers who have gone to California are Col. and Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, of Bellefield avenue. They are at their winter home in South Windsor boulevard, Los Angeles, where they will spend the season.

From Sewickley comes news that Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps Rose and their daughter, Lillian, of Thorn street, left on Sunday for Augusta, Ga., where they expect to stay until April. They will make their headquarters at the Park Ridge Inn.

One more debutante party is scheduled, this one to be held in Sewickley. Mrs. Frank R. Dravo, of East drive, is entertaining at bridge tomorrow afternoon, in her home, for Harriet Nourse Ramsburg, debutante daughter of the Charles D. Ramsburgs, of Sewickley. The guests will be limited to Harriet's sister "buds" and members of the young married set.

Miss Oliverette Graham Sutton has returned to Stuart Hall, Staunton, Va., after spending the holidays at her home in the Alder Court apartments.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Markus Talenfeld, of Haya street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Talenfeld, to Leo Kramer, son of Herman Kramer, of Milwaukee street.

William H. Avery of Providence, R. I., has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Helen Brown Avery, to Leon Hughes Hetherington, son of Mrs. T. A. Hetherington of Washington, Pa. Miss Avery is a graduate of the Women's College of Brown University, class of 1923, and is now an instructor at Wellesley College. Mr. Hetherington was graduated in the same year from Washington and Jefferson College, and he is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

MISS BETTY DUNLAP

IMMIGRATION STATUS IS EXPLAINED BEFORE CLUB

"Immigration is not a party matter, it is a matter of preserving America. It is not fair to the country nor to those immigrants already here to receive more than we can assimilate. It is not a question of our Americanizing them, so much as it is of their de-Americanizing us." This came as an interjection by Dr. William Starr Meyers, of Princeton, in his talk on "Personal Government" before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning as he warned against the "tremendous pressure which is being brought to bear against the present immigration restriction laws." Of his subject, Dr. Meyers said, "The higher the scale of political intelligence of a people the more do they dislike personal government whether it be in wards, cities or nations. Leadership, as differentiated from dictatorship, is the keynote a American government today."

Dr. Meyers discussed the post-war governments of Italy, Spain and Turkey, stressing the forward steps which have been taken under Mussolini, De Rivera and Kemal Pasha in their respective countries. It must be remembered, he said, that Italians in Italy present entirely different problems than Italians in America. Dr. Meyers believes democracy is the ideal form of government and the ultimate one, but when a people are not prepared for democracy that country goes into anarchy. "Self government must be acquired," he declared.

Before the Women's Press Club and a number of guests, Hamlin Long, Pittsburgh poet and author, discussed the disputed authorship of "Wuthering Heights" yesterday afternoon in the Woman's City Club. So sure is Mr. Long that the work was a collaboration of Emily Bronte and her brother, Patrick Branwell Bronte, that he has written Branwell's name with Emily's in his own copy of the work, the contemporary edition which has just been published. Mr. Long quoted from Alice Law as she presents the case for Branwell; he also read letters and extracts from the book to show that the language is not Emily's alone. Mr. Long's sketch of the Bronte family was especially enjoyable, for it, perhaps more than any other part of his talk, was marked by his inimitable humor. Mrs. E. M. Ashe poured during the tea hour which followed, and Miss Cecelia Schmidt and Miss Helen Donnelly assisted. The club will celebrate its thirty-seventh anniversary with a valentine dinner, February 13.

The name, date and masterpiece of an eminent Italian which the Literary and Musicl Club members gave in response to roll call yesterday brought out much interesting information in line with the study subject. The papers, which were on "Italian Literature—Yesterday and Today," "Pirandello and the Roman Theater" and "The Post D'Annunzio," were given by Mrs. Adelaide Cornell, Dr. Fannie Davis and Mrs. Edward R. Buchanan. The musical portion of the program consisted of soprano solos by Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens Cross and Mrs. J. A. Davis and piano solos by Mrs. Sylvia Hibbs McBeth, who also accompanied the singers.

Miss Mary B. Gilson, nationally known consultant in industrial relations in Europe and the United States and a graduate of Wellesley College, will address the College Club Friday afternoon. Tea hostesses for the afternoon include Mrs. John E. Nelson, chairman; Mrs. William M. McKelvy and Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, who will pour. Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, Mrs. Karl C. Randall and Mrs. Stowell C. Stebbins.

The first quarterly meeting of the year will be held by the Congress of Clubs January 25 in the club house. The nominating committee, under the new ruling, will be elected at this meeting.

The community service committee of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club sponsored a typical community program for yesterday's meeting in the Beech home, Washington road. Mrs. C. Watson Kennedy spoke on Mt. Lebanon's bond issue.

Mrs. H. C. Noyes of the Better Magazines Council, which she represents in her district; Mrs. C. W. Schock of the plans for developing Mt. Lebanon's park, and Miss Jeannette Blair of the community's school. Mrs. Thomas J. Ford, former president of the Aspinwall Woman's Club, described her organization's methods in financing its club house. A reception for new members completed the afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon the ways and means committee will have a bridge luncheon in the home of Mrs. R. A. Daniell, Washington road, and the garden department will meet with Mrs. H. M. Johnston, Ashland avenue. The music department will have its meeting Friday with Mrs. R. H. Shaffer, Park way drive.

The Edgewood Cot Club had one of its largest meetings of the year yesterday in the Edgewood Club and heard a program of interest. Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls read a group of poems and a one-act play and Mrs. Tracy Morrison presented soprano solos, with Mrs. Frank Conner accompanying. Mrs. L. Petty was chairman of hostesses, Mrs. John Duff appointed Mrs. Frank Leighton chairman of the nominating committee.

The American home department of the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club will sponsor a luncheon in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel January 30 and the new drama section will present two short plays in the hotel on the evening of February 16. F. Curtis Swanson addressed the regular meeting yesterday in the Y. W. C. A., speaking on recent developments in the British Empire, on the Geneva disarmament conference, the status of the German republic and Briand's plan to outlaw war between France and the United States.

"Safety in the Home" is the subject upon which John A. Cartel, retireding president of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, will speak before the Housekeepers' Club Thursday afternoon. Music will be furnished by Mrs. William O. Grunnagle, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. Thelma Williams. The chairman for the day is Mrs. E. J. Nuttall and Mrs. Emma Crosby will serve as hostess.

The proposed $50,000,000 state bond issue for modernizing penal and welfare institutions was the chief topic of a talk given yesterday by Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, state chairman of public welfare, at the Congress of Clubs. The occasion was a joint luncheon of the welfare and legislative departments of the Congress. The program also included songs by Mrs. J. C. Bily, accompanied by Mrs. Bertha Gross King.

PITTSBURGHERS RECEIVE BULK OF ESTATE

The will of Elizabeth M. Updegraff, late of Pittsburgh, who died at Yonkers, N. Y., January 1, disposes of an estate valued at $100,000, probate records show. She gives $500 each to the Board of Foreign and National Missions of the Presbyterian Church of America; $150 in equal shares to the Presbyterian Temperance Board, Freedman's Board and the Board of Ministerial Relief; $200 to the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, and $350 to the Yonkers Presbyterian Church.

She leaves $5,000 to three nieces, a nephew and her son-in-law. Her farm in Westmoreland county is left for the benefit of her grandchildren, Ruth P. Russell and Margaret Russell, for their education and musical training. The income of the testator's interest in real estate at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street is devised to her trustees, one-half of the income to be paid to her daughter, Grace U. Russell, and the other half to be paid to the grandchildren. The remainder of the estate is given to her daughter, Mrs. Russell.

REPORT BABY BORN WITH FULL BEARD

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 10.—It is reported from Propria City, in the state of Sergipe, that a baby has been born there with a moustache and beard. The baby's parents are farmers.

KICKED, MIDLAND WOMAN USES KNIFE

MIDLAND, Pa., Jan. 10.—When Christian Gones, 35, kicked Susy Gordoza, 30, police say, the woman retaliated with a butcher knife. Gones is now in Rochester Hospital. The woman was arrested.

SLOT MACHINES SMASHED

TENTH WARD DEVICES WRECKED

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner (right) and Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren are inspecting, with smiles of satisfaction, the ruins of 10 machines, known for their Scotch tendencies of giving little. The slotters were seized in the Tenth Ward by Alderman William Scott, recently elected, who promises a real clean-up.

WJAS TO BROADCAST PITTSBURGH SINGER

Mrs. Elmer Flannery Jones, Pittsburgh singer who has established a national reputation by her radio singing in New York, will broadcast here tonight over WJAS. Mrs. Jones will sing "Indian Love Call," "Absent," "Rain" and "Jamie Dear." It will be her first radio appearance in Pittsburgh, though she has sung here at many recitals.

VOTE MACHINES INDORSED BY TRADERS

Reflecting the interest in voting machines aroused by the discussions of the subject in The Sun-Telegraph, the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade last night adopted a resolution calling on the people of Pennsylvania at the next general election to approve the proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the use of these devices as a substitute for the paper ballot system of voting. It claims to be the first civic organization in Pittsburgh to take such action.

The South Side Board of Trade will see a voting machine demonstrated tonight and hear an address on the subject by Mrs. Lula Mosby. An address on voting machines also will be delivered tonight before the Lions' Club of Clairton by State Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor, with his brother, the late Senator John P. Harris, of the constitutional amendment.

Mrs. Mosby disclosed in an address before the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade that Thomas A. Edison invented the first voting machine.

"As with other inventions," she added, "it was crude and impractical for use in municipal elections. Discerning the feasibility for future utilization, John Meyers, of Rochester, N. Y., added many improvements. Others, too, have contributed materially toward its completion as a machine which purges corruption and minimizes election expenses."

WOULD BAN ALL BOULEVARD PARKING

Prohibiting of all parking at any time on Bigelow and Baum boulevards and on the Boulevard of the Allies has been recommended to the Department of Public Safety by R. R. Marshall, Inspector of Traffic.

"This division disapproves of any parking on any of the boulevards at any time because of interference with traffic," wrote Marshall in a letter forwarded to Council by Director James M. Clark.

With the letter, Clark submitted an ordinance, less drastic, which would prohibit parking on the boulevards between 8 and 9:30 a. m., the peak hour of the morning rush.

A move to improve traffic conditions in the Triangle by making Fifth and Sixth avenues one-way streets has the "unanimous disapproval" of the Retail Merchants Association, according to a letter received by Council from W. M. Jacoby, secretary.

WEATHER HALTS BRIDGE WORK

Work on super-structure of the Sixth street bridge will not be started until lengthy stretches of more favorable weather appear, V. R. Covell, chief engineer in the Bureau of County Bridges, said today.

At the same time Norman P. Brown, director of the county's Department of Public Works, denied emphatically blue prints for the super-structure are not in existence. He said they were in the hands of the contractor, the American Bridge Company.

GREEK CATHOLIC CHURCH LOOTED AT SOUTH FORK

SOUTH FORK, Pa., Jan. 10.—Thieves broke into the Greek Catholic Church here early today and stole a large amount of merchandise, left over from the Greek Christmas celebration.

STORE HOLDUP FOILED BY PATRONS

An attempt to hold up the confectionery store and lunch room of Benjamin Kapel at Craft avenue and Forbes street early today was frustrated by the entrance of two patrons, who frightened the robbers away. One of three armed robbers had just started behind the counter to the cash register when the customers arrived.

According to Kapel, who was in the restaurant at the time, the three robbers, all young men armed with revolvers, entered and ordered him to raise his hands. One of the robbers started for the cash register when the customers entered. The robbers brushed passed the newcomers to the street, jumped into an automobile and fled.

PRIEST GIVES UP ROME FLIGHT

The Rev. Dr. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, has given up his plans for an airplane flight to Rome because of difficulty in financing the project and of opposing views of fellow clergymen, it was announced yesterday.

A month ago, Father Cox made known his plans to fly from the United States to Rome, a passenger in a plane with Miss Myrtle Brown of Omaha, Neb., a sister-in-law of Guiseppe Bellanca, airplane designer. Later the project was made a local one when Father Cox planned to fly in a locally financed plane.

THE Enoch Rauh-Braddock American Legion game at Columbus Temple tonight heads the independent basketball program in this section.

While neither team has a chance to win the laurels in the first cycle of the Allegheny County League race, the Duquesne Lafayettes having clinched them last night by defeating the McKees Rocks Business Men, interest in tonight's battle is high as it marks the first appearance of Braddock at Columbus Temple.

Roy O'Donovan, former captain and star forward of the Duquesne University varsity, will lead a capable team against the Rauhs tonight, the lineup including besides himself Sticks Monahan, Martin, Schweinberg and several other prominent passers.

DRIBBLES

The Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. will hold a special meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock to discuss the franchises of the West Penn League. All managers in the league as well as others who did not get a franchise have been invited to attend.

Meyer Paris, star center of the Rauhs, who injured his knee in a recent game with Broadway, will be out of the lineup for some time. In the meantime Bill Miller will continue to hold down the pivot position.

The Stanos Club last night made it two in a row over the Sumer Roermans in the P. & O. League. This time the Stanos left no doubt as to their superiority, winning by a margin of 11 points.

The Braddock American Legion team will invade Butler Thursday to engage the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the Armory floor.

Two hard games face the Pittsburgh Railways quintet of the Philadelphia Company League this week. Tonight the Railways passers meet St. Michaels of Homestead, while Thursday night Philadelphia Company will be their opponents.

Whitey Waddell and Boots Campbell, former Stanos stars, have been signed by St. Catherines of the P. & O. League.

Davie Slutzsky, star forward of the Somermans, has been approached with an offer to play for Broadway in the Allegheny County League.

The Cleveland Rosenblums of the American League are dickering for a game with the Duquesne Lafayettes in Duquesne for February 1. Soups Campbell, former Homestead favorite, now is a member of the Rosies.

The Goose Goslins, who defeated the Broadway Club at the Market House last night, are negotiating for the services of Sky Twyman and Chick Hood.

South Siders are eagerly awaiting the battle tomorrow night at the Market House between the Goldensons and the Mieles. The Goldensons extended the Mieles to an extra period before losing the first game, but they are confident of turning the tables tomorrow night.

St. Joseph's of Mt. Oliver has clinched the South Side Lyceum Reserve League honors for the first half.

three opponents at Houston, Tex., February 11.

All the boxers on the amateur boxing card at McKeesport tomorrow and Thursday evenings must report to be weighed and examined by 7 p. m. There are more than 100 entrants and it is hoped to finish all of the preliminaries the first night, leaving only the semi-finals and finals for the second night.

Professional boxing will be resumed in McKeesport on the night of January 26, when Jackie Rodgers, Negro flyweight flash of the North Side, will meet Luis Carpentero, Filipino, of Toledo, in the 10-round main bout. Rodgers boxes Bobby Burke of Reading at Johnstown next Monday night.

Sergeant Sammy Baker boxes Charley Long, Negro, of Omaha, at Los Angeles tonight.

Johnny Risko will be at the ringside to challenge the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Tom Heeney bout in New York Friday night.

Promoter Tex Rickard has taken an option on Tommy Loughran's services until November 1 and plans to keep him out of the heavyweight complications until next year, when he hopes Tommy will be ready to box Gene Tunney.

The bout between Sid Terris and Jimmy McLarnin, scheduled for February 3 in New York, has been indefinitely postponed.

FIRPO WOULD COME BACK

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Luis Firpo wishes to go back to the United States and make a "comeback." The "Bull of the Pampas" acknowledged today that he had sent a letter to the American trainer, Jimmy De Forest, offering to place himself under his direction.

WALKER, BLOCK WOULD BUY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Paul Block, newspaper publisher and owner of the Newark Internationals, said today that he had been asked if he would like to buy the Brooklyn National League team with Mayor Jimmy Walker.

"I have been asked if I would be interested in the purchase of the Brooklyn team and I said I would be very much interested," Block stated.

Mayor Walker passed off questions with a laugh, saying: "It's too cold to discuss baseball."

Stephen W. McKeever, part owner, said the club was not for sale so far as he was concerned. He added that he was a "baseball bug" and that the game was his hobby.

"I will not sell my part in the club under any condition," he said.

The other half-interest in the ball team is controlled by the estate of Charles H. Ebbets.

Chicago Sox Best Fielders

ALTHOUGH the Chicago White Sox finished fifth in the 1927 American League pennant race, they led all rivals in fielding, topping the other team with a percentage of .971, which was one point better than Philadelphia, the second team, and two points better than Washington and New York, which were tied for third.

The White Sox made only 178 errors in the season. Philadelphia, which had many more fielding chances, erred 190 times. The St. Louis Browns, at the bottom in fielding, were charged with 248 errors. The Detroit team stood out in double plays, having executed 173 of them during the season. Boston was next with 167.

Judge of Washington led the first basemen with a percentage of .996 for 137 games, having made only six errors, but a feature of the first baseman's fielding was 131 assists turned in by Sisler of St. Louis.

Fonseca of Cleveland had the highest percentage of second basemen with .972 in 96 games. Gehringer of Detroit, who played 121 games, led in assists with 438, one more than Ward of Chicago had in 138 games.

Wera of New York played 19 games at third without an error, but the outstanding fielder at that position was Kamm of Chicago with .972 in 146 games. Joe Sewell of Cleveland was the leading shortstop with .962 for 153 games. He had 486 assists and 561 putouts and took part in 90 double plays.

not certain he will be able to compete on even the new date, on account of business matters that require his attention, though the promoters are hopeful of having him in line as one of the star attractions to lend class to the tourney.

The others who are expected to compete are Francis and Edgar Appleby of New York, Herb Hammer of Sheepshead Bay, and Elvin F. Edwards of Freeport, L. I., with Renner and Parker added.

Though 18.1 is not Clinton's game, cue experts in the East are predicting that the other entrants will have a hard job keeping him from landing on top if he takes part.

JACK SHARKEY, former gob, who has not appeared in the ring since his own conceit and blundering tactics enabled Jack Dempsey to beat him last July, will try to get back in the running as a heavyweight championship contender Friday night, when he is to meet Tom Heeney of New Zealand for 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden, New York, in the first event of Tex Rickard's new elimination series.

Jack Sharkey

The bout was arranged for last November, but Sharkey requested a postponement on account of an injury to his left hand. He is to be examined by New York Boxing Commission physicians today to determine his fitness.

Friday's fight will show whether or not Sharkey was as severely hurt in the Dempsey fight as some of the Dempsey boosters have maintained. They have expressed the opinion that the body beating taken by the former sailor caused injuries that will impair his fighting form.

That appears to be the main question clouding the outcome, for while his two bouts with Paulino, his knockout of Jim Maloney in one round and his 10-round victory over Johnny Risko have demonstrated that Heeney is dangerous, Sharkey has such big physical advantages in addition to his admittedly far superior boxing ability that Jack looks like the probable winner if the Dempsey beating or his lay-off has not impaired his fighting form.

IN SHAPING his plans for the National League pennant race of 1928, John McGraw is showing great faith in Catcher Johnny Cummings, the North Side boy, who has come along fast in spite of several injuries since the Giants obtained him from the Wheeling Club in 1926.

Johnny Cummings.

Most baseball followers were of the opinion last year that the main weakness of the McGrawites was in the catching department rather than in the box.

Though McGraw has dug up a number of new hurlers, however, but has made no apparent effort to strengthen the backstopping branch and from sources close to the Giant leader it is learned that he believes the Pittsburgh lad will come into his own this year and have such a big season as to make him the Giants' mainstay behind the bat.

McGraw is said to favor Cummings at this time over even Zack Taylor, and Taylor was considered first catcher during the latter part of 1927, though his hitting was a disappointment.

HOW undependable and misleading fielding averages may be in baseball is an indication of the actual worth of any particular player is shown again in the official figures for the American League season of 1927.

Ray Schalk.

If you were to pick a team according to the fielding leaderships in the various positions you would have the following lineup: Catcher, Schalk; pitcher, a choice from among Marberry, Shaute, Burke, Crowder, Reuther and others who had perfect averages; first base, Rollings; second base, Fonseca; third base, Wera; shortstop, Gillis; outfields, Langford, Gill, Reynolds, Boone and others who did not make an error. Outside the catcher and a couple of pitchers such a team would not get very far in a pennant race. Schalk admitted-five looms as being overly strong, the Tartans having been soundly trounced by both Davis-Elkins and West Virginia and Geneva having failed to get by the Webster Hall's amateur quintet here in Pittsburgh two weeks ago. For all that, however, Geneva looks to be the stronger of the two teams right now, and should win tonight.

Tomorrow evening, at New Wilmington, Geneva will open its Conference campaign by playing Westminster. The United Presbyterians loom as the probable champions for this year, with a well trained, veteran and sizeable team led by the clever Tudor Lewis and ably assisted by Sparky Connors, Delehanty, O'Donovan and Syers and Red Crowell.

to annulling the Dallas action, provided that the methods of former years should continue during the incumbency of Kenesaw Mountain Landis as baseball's $65,000 a year commissioner.

Commissioner Landis did not attend the meeting and neither did the various major league representatives who conferred with the minor league magnates before the executive session began.

In less than two hours the five big minors—International, Pacific Coast, Three Eye, American Association and Western League—had presented their opposition to the Dallas resolution and had won their right to continue under the modified draft. This system permits the major leagues to draft only those players who have come down from the major leagues, and protects the clubs of the Big Five in possession of the rookies they have developed themselves—for sale to the majors at fancy prices.

FIGHT

to illustrate. Let's climb into the ring. You show me how they engage in fisticuffs out your way, in Seattle, and I'll demonstrate how we do it in the East and especially around New York," Prof. Maxie replied.

And so they meandered into the ring, and the pupil never did get the prof's stuff and took a beautiful shellacking all the way.

Not quite all, but much, of the promise Johnson had shown in winning over Gemas was lost sight of in the face of Rosenbloom's unerring precision with both fists as he flipped and slapped and flayed and windmilled and chopped and generally cuffed about the willing youngster from the Coast. Garfield never quit trying to learn the lesson, but just couldn't catch up. All of his speed availed him naught against the shiftiness of Rosenbloom and the superior ring generalship of the latter. Maxie simply "outsmarted" Johnson to death as no opened his bag of tricks wide and caught him napping on the breaks and crowded him and held the whiphand at every style and turn of fighting. In the closing rounds he had Garfield badly winded and tired and bleeding copiously from the mouth and hanging on. Maxie himself was unmarked and as fresh as at the start. The patch of plaster had been knocked from over his injured eye, but the cut was not opened.

FIGHT IS ONE-SIDED

Johnson never was in the fight. Whereas he had shown a world of class against Gemas, he appeared actually green and crude against the orthodox Rosenbloom. The loser is a better fighter than he showed last night, but he was up against a ring buzzsaw who is liable to make anybody look bad. Maxie carried every round and by as much as he pleased. There were no knockdowns. Rosenbloom weighed 169 pounds and his opponent 170.

Johnny Michaels of the Hill was his usual flop in the eight-round semi-final and took a beating from Frank Gordini of Hazelwood. Only Michaels' toughness enabled him to stand up under the pasting he received. He weighed 121½ pounds and Gordini a half-pound less.

Nick Susnell of Rochester, Pa., 115 pounds, outboxed and outpunched Phil Scello of McKeesport, 116, in the second bout, the best on the card for well-contested fighting, but the judges disagreed, and Referee Eddie Kennedy gave the award to Scello, who was the favorite with the crowd, which applauded both men at the finish. Judge Simon voted for Scello and Judge Brown for Susnell.

SUSNELL-SCELLO PLEASE

Scello got off to a bad start, receiving a hard punching around the face, and his nose was bleeding badly as he went to his corner at the close of the opening round. He came out swinging for the second round and rushed Susnell against the ropes, where they slugged for a full minute without a letup as the crowd roared. It was one of the heat sustained exchanges the Garden ever has staged. Both were tired at the bell. The round belonged to Scello. Susnell carried the next three rounds and Scello then rallied again to win the final round, during which he pounded Susnell's body and forced him to hang on. This finish undoubtedly caused the split of the judges and the decision in his favor. The bout is good for a repeat any time.

Tony Phillips of the Hill, 126 pounds, making his professional debut, looked very good in stopping Young Radley of Monessen, 121½, with 27 seconds to go in the first round. Radley started off with a rush, but was a target for Phillips' cool boxing and accurate left hooks and took a count of nine and had his left eye cut and then went down again under another barrage, whereupon the referee halted the uneven affair.

Joe Keally refereed the main bout and Red Robinson and Eddie Kennedy alternated in the prelims. The referees had a new adornment on the shirts of their gray uniforms, consisting of the letters P. A. C. standing for Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, done in red. The crowd was one of the largest of the season.

to be in the running has to have some consistent batters. The Pirates, with four leading swingers, had more than their share, and this batting trend of the Buccos, together with the slab work of Kremer, Hill, Miljus, Meadows and Aldridge, decided the honors.

THE Waner brothers, Pie Traynor and Joe Harris were all included in the exclusive rating. Rogers Hornsby, George Harper and Bill Terry bludgeoned their way to the top 10 as they fought for the glory of the Giants; Frank Frisch and Chick Hafey made the grade for the Cardinals, while Riggs Stephenson of the Cubs forced his way into the circle.

committees made the tour a veritable excursion of delight and the players and coaches seemed anxious to let the public know they were appreciate of the favors.

The boys will go back to their classes tomorrow and will be honor guests at the Pitt-Tech basketball game in the Stadium Pavilion Friday night. On Saturday the squad will be guests at the annual Pitt football banquet, to be held at the William Penn Hotel at 6 p. m.

Bob Zuppke, veteran Illinois football coach and the man who developed Red Grange, is to be the principal speaker of the evening. Zuppke has been a power in Big Ten athletic circles for a great many years and is one of the best known gridiron coaches and authorities in the country.

A captain for the 1928 season will also be elected Saturday night to succeed Gibby Welch, who captained the great Panther eleven the past season.

There was no tendency on the part of anyone in the party to detract from the victory scored by the Stanford boys, who, according to Pop Warner himself, played their best game of the season against the Panthers. The Blue and Gold stars were of the opinion that the quick change in climate had a distinctive bearing on their own play, the contest being staged under very warm conditions. Capt. Gibby Welch, Dick Booth and other stars spoke of the climatic changes.

PRAISE VICTORS

Head Coach Jock Sutherland, like his players, were quick to give the Stanford players credit.

"We played good football at times, our best work coming when the enemy had the ball within the five-yard line," said Jock. "I believe the warm weather may have had an effect on our team, but the Stanford players displayed fine football throughout; in fact, Pop Warner told us that the play of the Californians against Pitt was the highest point in their efforts of the season. Everywhere we received exceptional treatment and I know this phase of the trip was not lost on our fellows. Everybody was wonderful."

The Panthers seemed glad to be home again. After a sitting for pictures outside the station the gridders hustled into taxicabs and were taken to their various homes. Soon they will be engrossed in their studies.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Motor Square Garden—Maxie Rosenbloom defeated Garfield Johnson, 10 rounds; Frank Gordini defeated Johnny Michaels, 8 rounds; Phil Scello, awarded referee's decision over Nick Susnell, 6 rounds; Tony Phillips won by technical knockout over Young Radley, 1 round.

The Cream of the Tobacco Crop

"The growth of LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes is a wonderful thing but there is a reason, I know, because I buy the Tobacco for LUCKY STRIKE. I buy 'The Cream of the Crop,' that mellow, sweet smoking Tobacco that the Farmer justly describes as I have described it above. The quality of LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes is telling. It is natural that the brand should show the tremendous growth that it is showing today."

Buyer of Tobacco at Louisville, Ky.

JAMES CRUZE

Director of Feature Photoplays, writes:

"In the direction of any of my big pictures, and especially during the filming of the Covered Wagon, the constant use of my voice demands that I keep it in first-class condition. As a cigarette smoker it was necessary that I find a cigarette which I could smoke without any chance of throat irritation or cough. After trying them all, I decided on Luckies. They are mild and mellow—which both protects the throat and gives real smoke enjoyment."

Although he recently was sold by the St. Louis Browns to the Washington Senators for the comparatively small sum of $25,000 the official averages of the American League for 1927, just released, reveal the fact that George Sisler led the circuit in stolen bases with 27, batted .327 and had the unusual total of 131 assists in 149 games at first base. The Browns got rid of Sisler, their former manager, after obtaining Lou Blue from Detroit to supplant the veteran at first base.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

EVEN when he steps out of his own game of 18.2 balkline billiards, at which he is National Amateur champion, and consents to compete in a tournament for the American amateur title at 18.1, John A. Clinton, Jr. of Pittsburgh is such a big card nationally in amateur cue sports that when he is not able to compete on the date originally set the promoters of the big championship affairs do not hesitate to postpone their tourney to a time that will be convenient for him.

John A. Clinton, Jr.

The annual amateur championship 18.1 competition was to have opened in New York yesterday, but when the tourney managers, who had been seeking Clinton's entry for some time, called him by long-distance telephone the other day to learn if he could appear, the Pittstar informed them that owing to pressing business engagements here he would not be able to play.

THE promoters immediately decided to postpone the opening of the tourney until January 23, announcing that as an additional reason two of the other entrants—Emil A. Renner of Youngstown, O., and Maurice Parker of Boston—were ill.

Clinton said yesterday that he is

BOB ZUPPKE TO SPEAK AT GRID FETE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

HAPPY despite their failure to trim Stanford and Pop Wagner, Pitt's football stars returned home from California at 8:45 o'clock this morning. And the grid luminaries were hailed as conquering heroes, the Pitt band and many students and members of the alumni being on hand to give the travelers a noisy welcome as they arrived at the Pennsylvania Station.

Bob Zuppke.

The athletes were right on time as their big flyer pulled in the station shed. The band struck up a piece and when the players came smiling down their sleepers they heard familiar tunes and voices of cheer that made them feel that, after all, the game's the thing and that victory should be a second consideration.

PANTHERS FLATED

The whole squad was singing the praises of California folks and others along the line for wonder treatment received. The various reception

TWO HANDBALL CHAMPS HERE

Two National handball champions, George Nelson, A. A. U., titleholder, and Albert Hobelman, Y. M. C. A. champion, both of Baltimore, will appear in an exhibition series of matches with Frank Smith and Theodore Manos, local stars, on the courts of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Saturday afternoon. Play will begin at 2 o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

The matches will mark the first simultaneous appearance of two National champions in a handball match in Pittsburgh. Both Nelson and Hobelman have big reputations and the local players are primed to give them a stiff battle for honors.

Chapman Battle Is Off

THERE will be no more boxing shows at Motor Square Garden for three weeks or a month.

The Red Chapman-Al Corbett show planned for next Monday night fell through yesterday when word was received from Chapman in Boston to the effect that the doctors have just taken the cast off the shoulder he injured in beating Tommy Crowley here recently and he will not be ready to box for at least three weeks. The decision was reached then to cancel the show entirely and begin immediately to get the Garden ready for the automobile show, which will hold forth there and crowd out several show nights.

Bud Taylor and Louisville Babe Ruth headline a card of bouts in the Chicago Coliseum tonight. Smiley Springer and Joey Rose meet in the semi-final and Lee Marriner and Bud Doran, heavyweights, in a feature preliminary.

Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney has been signed for an exhibition of two rounds each against

Princeton And Navy May Play

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Princeton loomed today as a likely opponent for the Navy on the gridiron in place of the Army.

Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of Princeton's board of athletic control, announced that "all matters of immediate interest to Princeton athletics" would be considered at a meeting Thursday.

"I refuse to affirm or deny that Princeton will play the Navy in 1928," he added.

By accepting a game with the Navy, Princeton would be obliged to play on November 24, a week after the Yale contest, which would be a radical departure from Princeton athletic custom.

ROSENBLOOM IS VICTOR

JOHNSON PROVES EASY

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

PROF. MAXIE ROSENBLOOM of New York, celebrated sockologist, entered the Motor Square arena last night completely surrounded by a coonskin coat and with a bit of plaster on an old cut over his left eye to deliver one of his famous lectures on the art and science of hitting 'em early and often and keeping 'em from hitting you back if possible.

He found what appeared to be a bright young scholar awaiting him in the person of Garfield Johnson, Negro light-heavyweight of Seattle, nicknamed the Black Streak, and started to teach him a few things.

"Ah don't think Ah ketch your meanin', Mr. Professah," said Garfield, a bit puzzled. "Now, you see, Ah whipped this yere George Gemas here a couple of weeks ago by jes' smackin' him down. It was so easy! But Ah don't seem to git this yere new-fangled sort of stuff you is talkin' about."

"Well, now in that case I'll have

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

THE Pirates did not show much speed on the bases last season, but they were pacemakers in hitting and pitching. The official batting figures disclose that no less than four Bushwhackers were among the first 10 batters in the league; New York was next with three, St. Louis had two and Chicago one.

NOT one of the four second-division teams had a representative among the select 10, the natural inference being that a club

DRAFT WAR COMES TO END

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The draft war among the minor leagues came to a sudden end yesterday. The resolution adopted at Dallas last month, ordering the five big minor leagues to cease their "modification" of the draft was rescinded by unanimous vote of delegates representing all the minors, both big and little.

Yesterday's resolution, in addition

PENN WANTS 1928 GRID GAME WITH BEARS IN EAST

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Ernest B. Cozens, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, wants another football duel with the University of California, but not in the Golden Bears' backyard. Franklin Field, Philadelphia, would be the scene of another tussle between Pennsylvania and California, and a pressing invitation for the Bears to come to Philadelphia in 1929 is now in the mails.

Mehlhorn has a fine, deliberate style all his own on the green and gets splendid results. Before signing to come here a few days ago, Mehlhorn was affiliated with the North Hills Country Club. Making his first start as the Wilkinsburg Club pro, Bill finished fourth in the Los Angeles $10,000 open tourney over the last week-end. His addition to the local ranks of golf professionals adds much prestige to this group.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn, new pro at the Wilkinsburg Country Club, who has an international reputation. He takes a mean cut at the ball on his swing and that's one of the reasons for the prefix to his name. Although a bit erratic in his driving, he is one of the longest shooters from the tee in the game.

DUKES, TARTANS PLAY AWAY TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., and Wellsburg, W. Va., will play host to two of Pittsburgh's three college basketball teams tonight. The Carnegie Tech Tartans, defeated in two games played in West Virginia last week, will be at Beaver Falls for a contest with Geneva, while Duquesne, a 35-31 winner over Thiel in a Conference game Saturday night will essay to make it two straight in league competition by whipping the Green Bisons of Bethany.

The Bisons were taken over by Wash-Jeff last night at Washington in the opening game of the season for both teams. Despite this defeat, Bethany is bound to be dangerous tonight, for the boys will doubtlessly have gained somewhat in experience, and will be on their own court.

Carnegie Tech will be on the short end tonight against Geneva. Neither

What Do You Cheer Most? Schwab Offers a Pointer.

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT appeals most to business men?

It was intensely interesting to watch the reactions of the hundreds who attended a testimonial luncheon tendered Charles M. Schwab in New York the other day.

The biggest cheers were aroused, not by ringing declarations concerning patriotism, not by any declamations of the importances of making a fortune, not by preachments concerning the necessity of dealing fairly and squarely in business.

The loudest and most enthusiastic cheers came when Schwab declared that, more to be valued than anything else, are the friends one makes in the journey through life.

THE majority of those at the luncheon were either middle-aged or elderly. There were very few young men and hardly any, I should say, who have not climbed at least two or three rungs up the business ladder. Had the audience consisted mainly of young men, Schwab's emphasizing of the priceless friends would have elicited distinctly less cheering.

The tragedy is that, after leaving school or college, most men enter the battle of life without realizing the worthwhileness of maintaining and cultivating friends. Often the pace is extremely strenuous. Often precious little time is found for anything but wrestling with each day's problems and planning how to overcome them.

IN THE twenty or twenty-five years between school or college days and the winning of a more or less responsible position in the world of affairs, the making of friends too often is either totally neglected or treated as a matter of the most secondary importance.

After that, what happens?

BY THE time men have fought their way towards the top and are ready to turn their thoughts to getting something out of life besides material possessions, they discover that they have permitted their garden of friends to become overgrown by weeds.

They are shocked to find that they have completely lost the old, intimate touch with almost everyone of their schoolmates and that, on reflection, most of the acquaintances of more recent years are merely acquaintances and not really deep-rooted friends.

I RATHER think it was because a great many of those who listened to Schwab's pronouncements about the value of friendships now sense that they wholly or partly neglected to win friends and prove friends, that his philosophy appealed so strongly to them.

Happily, all men do not have such sad experiences. Take Schwab. He declared—truthfully—that the best friends he had in the world had been made during his half-century's business life.

Why?

Because Charlie Schwab all the way along has radiated friendliness and, in turn, has attracted it. Certainly he has encountered about as many disappointments and trying experiences as any big man in America. For ten years he never opened the door of his New York mansion, so completely tied up was he in the problem of raising Bethlehem Steel from a small, dilapidated, bankrupt concern to a gigantic, profitable enterprise.

But all this, as he remarked the other day, did not sour him on humanity. He kept on smiling while he was toiling. He had a cheery word and awarm grasp of the hand for everybody. He took time to tell a good story.

DOUBTLESS there were among Schwab's hearers millionaires who had it brought home to them that their lives have not been genuinely successful, that they are entering the evening of life rich only in money and poor indeed in friends.

IS NOT the moral of it all simply this? We should not allow ourselves, no matter how busy we are, no matter how numerous and perplexing our difficulties, to become callous towards others, to become utterly bereft of sentiment, to become coldly mercenary and self-centered, but should, for our own sakes—to say nothing of the sake of others—so live and act day by day as to win friends and prove ourselves true blue friends.

HARBISON-WALKER ISSUES IN NEW HIGH GROUND

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Trading in the bond market today again assumed a generally desultory appearance, with prices showing only fractional changes. The undertone was firm, with easy money conditions as the chief factor. New offerings, after a brief spurt on Monday, once more eased off to a trickle.

Such railway liens as have been advancing gradually since the beginning of the year, showed a tendency to ease off. Erie 5s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s and Chesapeake Corporation 5s were fractionally lower. "Frisco" issues developed some activity at firm prices following reports of a large refinancing program.

Public utilities and industrials changed hands in fair volume, but prices were little changed from yesterday's closing figures. Bethlehem Steel 6s eased off from their peak price established yesterday, and sold around their high for 1927.

Fractional irregularity ruled the foreign group as a whole and trading was in relatively small volume. United States government bonds were steady and quiet.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

A hotel management has posted the following notice for guests:

One of the many troubles of the hotel owner is keeping the bedroom furniture repaired and polished where playful guests have opened various bottles in these prohibition days by knocking the tops on the sharp edges of the dressers and tables and have set them dripping on the flat surface, so that tell-tale stains of white remain. We have tried to anticipate the wants of our guests who vote so strongly for prohibition and cling to their Pop and Sodas by providing patent bottle-openers and cork screws fastened to the wall, and glass tops for the dressers.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Sir:

Recently I was invited to a party given by movie boys and girls. Upon arriving I found everybody sitting around the rooms with hands folded in their laps and staring at one another. Thinking to be the life of the party, I pulled a bottle of gin from my pocket and cried: "Come and get it." Imagine my embarrassment when three women and two men were trampled beyond recognition.

BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP FOR FRISBY PROMISED

It's just this sort of thing Frisby is trying to stop in the halls of Congress.

By MR. FRISBY,
Congressman-at-Large.

WASHINGTON—Today I was pained to discover that some of our Congressmen, although professing to be prohibitionists, are indeed violators of the Volstead Act.

By stealth I gathered my data, thus:

Seeing a Page Boy running up and down the aisles, I snapped my fingers and becked the lad to come thither.

"Well, little man," said I, "where are you going?" I asked.

"To get some ginger ale," he replied.

"Ginger ale!" exclaimed I.

"Yes," he replied, "and cracked ice."

"And who, may I ask, for?" I continued.

"Congressman Glutz," said the boy.

"Where is he?"

"In the cloak room."

I tiptoed to the cloak room and had a long talk with Congressman Glutz. He said he had a cold—in fact, we both have been bothered by la grippe. Congressman Glutz loves to tell stories. He also invited me to meet his secretary, which I certainly shall do.

I believe it was the start of a beautiful friendship, as Congressman Glutz and I have promised to work hand in hand.?

ON "THE AGGRESSIVE MALE"

MAN is an ARROGANT creature!
Sometimes NOBLE to behold,
Sometimes, not. But in both
Cases apparently CARRIED away
With the idea that, being
MALE, he must STRUT up and Down in the world, making
A lot of NOISE and causing
Endless CONFUSION among women.
Evidently he CAN'T help it.
He seems to think he was made
To STRUT his STUFF, or
With equal majesty, STALK
His little PREYS.
It's a marvellous GESTURE, of
Course. So full of DIGNITY
And majesty, so IMPOSING,
So devastating if the
WOMAN he is stalking
HAPPENS to
LOVE him. But how SILLY if
She does NOT! And MOST Women, at some time, seem to FIND the position
Where they have to TELL the Aggressive MALE that the Aggress isn't working, that the
Ardor he offers leaves them
COLD. The suddenness of the BLOW may stun him momentarily,
But the NEXT night he Turns up with CANDY.

BUGS BAER Says

JUST ACROSS THE STREET—BUT MAKE OUT YOUR WILL.

IN THE old days when a pedestrian wanted to cross the street he stood not upon the order of his going, looked neither to the right nor left, but snapped his cuffs gingerly, prodded the terrain with his shepherd's crook and marched forth with the full honors of war.

The worse danger he might encounter would be overhead traffic on high-wheeled bicycles. The boys on those ancient bikes looked like an engineer eating his lunch on a stalled fly-wheel. They took good care never to nudge a pedestrian because the bicyclist had the longest distance to tumble.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

The man who crossed the street in the crinoline period had the right-of-way. And he elaborated on it.

He tipped his hat to beautiful ladies riding side-saddle, nodded pleasantly to the butcher's cart and then engaged in political discussions in the center of the road in the effort to analyze the destiny of a nation which was rushing forward to destruction at the rate of three miles an hour within the city limits.

Even if he happened to be walking cross-grained to an Odd Fellows' parade or was forced to proceed cater-cornered to a procession of cattle on their way to be city-dressed beef, he never hurried. Every street was a stripe in the American flag. Now, all we see are stars.

If a hand projected from the window of a hansom cab, the old timer bowed from the hinges of his hips and kissed it gallantly.

Now, when a hand sticks out of a cab window, it comes very swiftly. And you must dodge it.

The right-of-way is memory. And it is going to be worse when Henry sells another fifteen million. There have been some people who crossed the boulevards successfully in 1927. But they made non-stop flights.

The cars are so close together now that smart pedestrians are taking short cuts through limousines. All we need to make the congestion unanimous is for the automobiles to be equipped with couplers like freight trains. As it is, the wise chauffeurs require no gas for city touring. They just take off their brakes and allow the cars in the rear to push 'em along.

The quickest and safest way to bridge the main stem is by tunneling. The best record for Fifth avenue is a hop, skip and bump hung up by an athlete. The safest hours for shopping trips are between midnight and dawn, when all the stores are closed.

Unless the pedestrian of 1928 learns how to utilize the power imparted by a bump in the back or acquires the knack of walking telegraph wires, we advise to either stay off the streets or burrow under them like beavers.

"I'm afraid we can't use this poem of yours," said the editor.

"Well, if it's too long——" began the persistent poet.

"Yes, it is," said the editor, quickly; "it's too long, too wide, too deep, and too thick. Good afternoon.

"I knew your first husband—a fine man—he died too soon."

U. S. Not "Too Proud to Fight" for Our Interests In THIS Hemisphere

The enemies of President Coolidge are having a hard time to stir up sympathy for the bandit Sandino, whom they are trying to represent as a Nicaraguan patriot being remorselessly crushed by the American marines.

The fact is that Sandino has been repudiated by both parties in Nicaragua, by the Liberty Party of Juan B. Sacasa as well as the Conservative Party of Adolfo Diaz, who is now President.

In putting down Sandino, the marines are simply keeping the peace which both parties in Nicaragua want kept, and which they agreed themselves to keep when they laid down their arms last May and accepted the suggestion of Henry L. Stimson that they await the verdict of the Nicaraguan people at the polls next August.

It is something over a year since we landed our marines in Nicaragua. President Coolidge in his special Nicaraguan message to Congress on January 11, 1927, said that our soldiers were sent in there because of "disturbances and conditions which seriously threatened American lives and property and endangered the stability of all Central America, and put in jeopardy the rights granted by Nicaragua to the United States for the construction of a canal."

When our marines went in all Nicaragua was in the throes of civil war, being waged against the Constitutional President Diaz, by the forces of Sacasa, who, President Coolidge said, was supported and munitioned by Mexico.

Americans, British and other foreign citizens were in terror and clamoring for protection from their governments. Great Britain was threatening herself to intervene if we did not, and her representative at Managua even sent an ultimatum to the American minister there, reading:

"I have the honor to inform your Excellency that in the absence of guarantees from the Nicaraguan and United States Governments for the protection of the lives and property of British subjects in the event of further secret fighting, incendiarism and pillage, in threatened districts of this republic, His Britannic Majesty's government are reluctantly contemplating the dispatch of a man-of-war to the Western coast of Nicaragua."

President Diaz himself was begging for our assistance and admitting that he could not give protection to foreign interests without our aid.

It would have been a craven American Government that refused to intervene, a Government false to the duties it owed to its citizens, false to the dictates of humanity and false to the Monroe Doctrine. The President said further in his message:

"It has always been and remains the policy of the United States in such circumstances to take the steps that may be necessary for the preservation and protection of the lives, the property and the interests of its citizens and of this Government itself. In this respect I propose to follow the path of my predecessors."

To the satisfaction of this country, the President not only intervened. He is carrying on. He is not a Wilson, to discredit himself and the nation by allowing Americans to be murdered without vigorous action.

Wilson sent American troops and sent the American navy into Mexico. Then he turned tail and sneaked out, leaving American civilians in Mexico to their fate.

He did not have the spirit to protect American interests on our own continent, where he said, "America is too proud to fight." But he sent millions of Americans to fight in a purely European war that was none of our concern.

American foreign policy has never been better stated than by President Coolidge in his address at the Hotel Astor last April 25:

"Our Government has certain rights over and certain duties toward our own citizens and their property wherever they may be located. The person and property of a citizen are a part of the general domain of the nation, even when abroad."

Fire Horses Go—Presages Passing of Beat-Walker

The last team of horses remaining in the service of the fire department has made its final heroic dash. Dan and Bob—for Dan and Bob they are—can be visioned as heroes hereafter only in case they should arrive just in the nick of time with a load of fuel for fire engines. They have been reduced to the unromantic task of hauling coal for snorting pumps mounted on motor cars.

Those of us who are sentimental will sigh, but the practical see in the passing of Dan and Bob evidence of that which has made our fire department more efficient—modern motorized machines for the fighting of fire expanded to such a number that our faithful animal friends no longer are required. Through this expansion fire stations have been eliminated and it has been made possible for us to keep down the manual fire-fighting force despite increase in population.

Dan and Bob, too, possibly are foreshadows of the last policeman to walk a beat. In recent days we have heard the demand for more policemen and the reply that there was no money to pay for the number demanded. Some day the answer will be found in making the policeman more efficient by the use of a machine just as the fireman has been made more efficient by the use of machines.

Mounted on a motorcycle a policeman could cover a larger "beat" than he now walks and he could do it oftener. He would be more of a terror to evil-doers because of the uncertainty as to when he would show up and the certainty that he would come at infinitely greater speed when he did arrive.

Dan and Bob have passed. Our old friend, the walking patrolman, as we now know him, will pass, too.

No Fascist Citizens?

We Admit Buddhists and Such.

An official in the Department of Labor says foreign-born citizens will have their citizenship revoked if members of the Italian Fascisti. Why?

A naturalized foreigner may belong to the Buddhist Church and believe young Krishnamurti to be the genuine Messiah, and still remain an American citizen. He may believe in spiritualism, telepathy, Mohammedanism, Zoroastrianism or single tax. Why should he lose his citizenship because he believes Mussolini has the right idea for Italy?

You may say "he might want to try Mussolini's methods here." What of it? The Constitution gives him the right to want anything and try anything if he can get the majority with him.

EVOLUTION OR REVOLUTION?

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Story of a Lightning Ball

ONE of nature's greatest freaks is "ball lightning." It is a nerve-freezing terror to those who see it, though it seems singularly considerate of, or merciful toward, its human witnesses. Floating as lightly as down, though it is a concentrated sphere of close-packed energy, as powerful as an anarchistic bomb, it will enter an open door or window during a thunderstorm, sail serenely around the room, under the very nose of the motionless beholder, fascinated and breathless with fear, or softly drop down and roll over the floor, like a kitten's playball, to finally disappear by going up the chimney where it may explode with terrific noise; or by drifting out the way it entered, to blow up perhaps on the lawn. Such is about the usual course of the phenomenon. I think few have ever been injured by these terrifying electrical visitors, notwithstanding their power for mischief.

The literature of ball lightning is mostly scattered through forgotten reports or transient publications. The textbooks on meteorology do not throw any satisfactory light on the cause of such extraordinary manifestations of electric energy. Many persons express incredulity concerning the stories that have been printed about ball lightning, and it must be confessed that a careful checking of the statements made by the alleged eye-witnesses is perhaps always lacking. But the thing is so interesting in itself, the mystery so amazing, that I here reproduce, with only some shortening of phrases, a vivid account given by B. R. Laskowski, of the United States Weather Bureau, and printed last summer in a meteorological journal called Tychos.

The incident occurred in a second-story room of the narrator's house in Alpena, Michigan, about noon August 1, 1907. The house was a two-story frame building with outside walls built double, having an air space of about six inches. Mr. Laskowski was leaning against the right-hand side of an old-fashioned chimney projecting from the center of the west wall, and in the midst of the storm a glowing ball, about six to eight inches in diameter, came in on the left-hand side of the chimney, about six feet from the floor. It was a perfect sphere, and it dropped lightly like a feather to the floor and rolled toward the north side of the room. There was no sputtering or hissing. Upon encountering the wall it did not hesitate at all, but entered it, making an opening smaller than the apparent size of the ball, moved upward in the air-space within the wall and came back into the room a few feet above the window. It broke a two by four inch brace at that place into pieces, many of which were as small as toothpicks, and forced a considerable amount of plaster to fall to the floor.

"The ball fell to the floor once more as lightly as it had dropped from the chimney and rolled around on the floor, making several complete circles within a few feet of where I stood petrified with amazement. It left no mark on the floor. After this procedure it went into the south wall without any effort whatever, making a small opening there, but instead of traveling in between the wall as it did the first time, broke a ragged hole through outside and struck into the ground about thirty feet from the house.

"When the shower was over the hole in the ground looked as if someone had dropped a great weight from above upon the moist ground and the dirt had splattered to the sides of several inches around, leaving a hole about six inches in diameter, and several inches deep, but no other marks."

Resolve to Keep Well

TALKING of bowling the other day, an advertising expert criticized an advertisement urging "Bowl for Your Health."

"Nobody," said he, "cares anything about his health till he gets sick. Bowling is good for your health, true enough; but who wants to do what's good for him, for that reason only? So he changed the copy to read "Bowl for Your Delight."

Maybe it's true that nobody cares about his health till he gets sick. And maybe that is one great reason why so many people get sick. The United States Public Health Service reports that in a "typical" investigation it made in one city there were 1,050 illnesses in a year for every thousand inhabitants.

One of the good resolutions it is not too late to add to the New Year's list is "not to be sick in 1928."

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Try This

GIVEN like conditions, it is strange how differently your friends respond when you ask them to be nice to a stranger.

Comparatively rare is the one who will not go out of his or her way to meet a distinguished person.

But when it is to do something for one who is alone and unacquainted, with no record of accomplishments as yet, those who will endeavor to make life better and happier for the stranger in their midst, are few and far between.

It calls for sympathy.

It requires experience.

It takes time.

It shows respect and kindly feeling for those who ask favors, if a letter of introduction is made something worthwhile to all concerned.

If you have tried to do something for one of your friends away from home and he or she has profited by it, you know how your heart warms to the one who has been promptly kind at your suggestion.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Submarines

THEY glide, they lurk within the sea of thought;
They shun love's sunshine and hope's fresh, sweet wind.
With skill and cunning are their timbers wrought,
By master-architects of Hell designed.

Doubt, hatred, fear—they seek the shadows dim,
Still choosing hidden ways and darkest scenes;
They watch and wait with patience, gray and grim,
To take their toll, the soul's dire submarines.

Words of the Wise

The sublime and the ridiculous are so often so nearly related that it is difficult to class them separately. One step above the sublime makes the ridiculous, and one step above the ridiculous makes the sublime again.—Thomas Paine.

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.: I am a young Mexican and among my friends is a delightful American woman who occasionally invites me to her home to dine. The occasions are most enjoyable, for they are all lovable in her home, but they always treat me to improperly prepared "Mexican dishes," consisting of enchiladas and hot tamales, so hot that it is practically impossible for me to eat them. I must confess that I have not had the courage to tell them that the so-called Mexican dishes are as much Mexican as I am a Turk and that my eating them gives me great torture. And now they have asked my sister to dine with them. I love my sister, and so I am begging you to write a few lines about "Mexican Tamales" so that my friends may read them, for I know they read Ye Towne Gossip. Otherwise I must feed my sister asbestos before going to that dinner. F. L. P.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Upper Broadway, beyond Seventy-second street, continues to increase its dazzling opulence. It has become almost as brilliant with lights as Times Square. No section of Manhattan has undergone such a thorough change in the past 10 years.

Staid family hotels of that district have sliced their fronts into cubicle shops. Their dining rooms have installed jazz bands and cater to after-theater parties. First-run movie houses are in every block. Broadway hits stop there before taking the road.

Child's has invaded the section with their more luxurious oval windowed type of restaurant. Small notion shops have ballooned into big department stores. The Sunday afternoon parade is almost as fashionably colored as that on Fifth avenue. Ten new hotels have opened up in the past four years.

Lower Broadway has mirrored its trade jangle uptown in nut stores, night haberdasheries, hat shops, souvenir and song sheet crevices, ticket agencies and other fol de rol. And ladies with sable wraps over kimonos air dogs in side streets as they do in the Forties.

Business used to come to a sudden stop at Seventy-second street, and upper Broadway was another world. It did not seem to be the same street and when the towering Ansonia was erected it was dubbed "Stokes' Folly." Men with vision have made millions in real estate speculation beyond Seventy-second street.

The shrewdest experts have never been able to forecast the shift of trade in New York. It happens with a mercurial rush. A few years ago trade seemed brisker on the west side of Fifth avenue, but in the last few years has gone over to the east side—many established firms moving across the way.

When the elevated spur was removed from Sixth avenue beyond Fifty-third street what had been a section of cheap John stores was cleared away with the speed of dry grass in a prairie fire. In six months that strip became a fashionable center for hotels, apartment houses and shops.

Upper Broadway, incidentally, offers a shoe shine stand magnificence not seen elsewhere on the mad little isle. There are deep cushioned leather chairs with arm ash trays, a supply of cigarets and even copies of La Vie Parisienne. The shiners wear plum colored uniforms, cocky tambourine caps, and are forbidden to talk save when spoken to. Oh, yes, an engaging blonde is enthroned in the cashier's cage.

The old and almost extinct game of drop-the-handkerchief was revived this week in a hotel lobby. A gentleman responded gallantly and a half hour later was driving around Central Park with a perfumed creature who cried on his shoulder as she removed his wallet and watch. "A dirty trick," he informed the police. Anyway he seemed to catch the idea.

Hotels have tried for years unsuccessfully to rid lobbies of adventurous ladies and scheming men. It is the reason chiefly latter day hotels have hand-box like offices with only a chair or two for loungers. Acquaintance with strangers in hotels is always dangerous. The police have records of some 10,000 expert film flammers who "work" the hotel lobbies. The ladies no longer openly solicit nor do men "crash" an acquaintance. They are more subtle and manage to secure introductions that appear casual and proper.

One of the hotel rackets is worked over the telephone. A gentle voice inquires if this is Mr. Jones. She knows in advance perfectly well it is Erasmus Whoosis, of Enid, Oklahoma. And when he says it is Mr. Whoosis she gasps: "Not from Enid, Okla.?" Does he remember meeting her when she was visiting his town? He doesn't and they talk on about this and that until she jockeys him into an expressed desire to meet her. She is married, but will meet him at the apartment of her friend, Miss Smith. He goes there, is usually befuddled by cocktails when she arrives. The pseudo husband appears and a variant of the old badger game claims another victim. No one squeals and for that reason it is worked profitably.

Good Will

By DR. FRANK CRANE

An intangible asset, but one of the most valuable to any business concern is good will.

It is valuable because it sells goods and that is what a man is in business for.

It is not only necessary to make the best rat trap in the world, if you are selling rat traps, but it is equally important that people should want it, and they can't want it if they don't know about it. That is why advertising occupies so large a place in the modern, nationally consumed article.

People wondered why the Dodge family reecived such a large amount of money for their concern. It was largely because of the steady and persistent advertising throughout the lifetime of the Dodge brothers. The sales of the Chevrolet automobile have increased enormously because of its advertising.

One of the members of a prominent soap firm, the Colgates, told this writer that he tried stopping advertising for one year and the sales fell off to an alarming extent.

People soon forget. If a thing is not constantly called to their attention they think of it no more.

Any man who is in the public's notice knows how quickly the public forgets when once the papers cease talking about him. What is true of public characters is true of any trade-marked article. Such a thing as stopping advertising and running along on your reputation does not exist.

It is as necessary to make a market for your wares as it is to produce those wares and push their sales. The market is the other half of the hinge. The door won't swing open with one-half of a hinge.

It requires a good deal of ability to write a taking advertisement. Just anybody can't do it. The boss often finds himself stumped to think of lures that will catch the public eye. These advertisers have to be trained men who know how to use the English language and know how to make every word tell. The advertisements are possibly the best kind of literature in our magazines. They are written by highly paid men who know their business.

There is no especial trick about it. Funny advertising and strained advertising do not accomplish the purpose so much as telling the people succinctly and attractively the merit of what you have to sell.

All this goes towards making up that intangible something known as good will.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Keep Moving Onward

LIFE moves!

You must move with it if you would be healthy.

There's no stopping place. You must go on and on, rising and rising, from level to level, changing all the time, making new adjustments.

"Growth-stages," Prof. H. A. Overstreet calls them in his new book, "ABOUT OURSELVES." There's a sensible, friendly book which will tell you amazing things about yourself in the simplest way.

"Healthy human life goes by growth-stages," says Prof. Overstreet. "For a few months or a few years the individual lives on a level where the functioning is very much of the same kind. Then it becomes necessary for him to move on, to climb to another level and then to another. AN INDIVIDUAL FAILS WHENEVER, AT THE NORMAL TIME AND UNDER NORMAL CIRCUMSTANCES, HE REFUSES OR IS UNABLE TO MAKE THE NECESSARY MOVEMENT FORWARD. HE IS THEN SAID TO REMAIN FIXATED."

"An individual fails when he won't move on—" that's a new thought, isn't it? You've always thought that a successful life should finally reach a place where it no longer needed to struggle or worry, where all was safe and sure, where uncomfortable changes were no longer necessary. You were taught that as a child. All your life you have tried to reach that goal. All your life you've dreaded and resented anything which made life difficult and uncertain and painful. You wanted to "settle down and take things easy."

But healthy life never settles down and takes things easy. AND THE MAN WHO DOES SETTLE DOWN IN ONE ATTITUDE AND REFUSES TO MOVE ON GOES BAD ON HIMSELF.

You must move on! You must put the past away. You must step out of the present into the future!

It matters not how sweet the past was, how filled with love or success or contentment—you must leave it and go on into new fields or your spirit will ossify.

Remember Lot's wife. Sodom was burning and Lot had been warned to flee without a backward glance. But Lot's wife yearned for her own home, and, looking back, she was turned to a pillar of salt, WHICH WAS THE OLD POLITICAL WAY OF SAYING THAT LOT'S WIFE HAD A FIXATION.

The tragic people who become "fixed" by some experience of grief or remorse which they cannot surmount—whose spirits will not go forward but cling forlornly to the grave of some dead dream—

Failures, all of them, because they will not MOVE ON.

Don't let yourself become fixed in any period of your development.
